Art

Study on Chinese Traditional Theory of Artistic Style / Jiaxiang Hu
Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2019
540p.
ISBN: 9789813279421
$ 175.00 / HB

The book features an in-depth analysis of pre-modern Chinese discourses on artistic style especially the concept of Vitality-Charm (氣韻). Adopting an interdisciplinary approach, the book examines Vitality-Charm and related topics from the perspectives of aesthetics, stylistics, semiotics, cosmology, art history, and socio-cultural history. It reviews the development of, and examines the relations between, the concepts of poetic vision, spiritual resonance, spiritual expressiveness, Vitality-Charm and so on in the tradition of Chinese art (including literature, music, dancing, and drama). The book also attempts to clarify confusions caused by the overlapping and indistinct demarcations between the concepts when they are used in the discourse of, and even the training of art — especially traditional Chinese art.

388p.
9787500155171
From Inside China Series

Until the 1990s, Northeast China was the cradle of the new China's industrial base that made the most historic contribution to China's reform and opening-up program. However, as China's modernizing reforms deepened, the Northeast's economic development gradually began to lag behind China's eastern seaboard. This is a story of decline and rejuvenation: after the slow disaster witnessed and endured in the lonely silence of years, the people of the Northeast ultimately once again discovered the belief and confidence that their great region would rise again from the ashes.

China is transforming from a big continental country to a strong maritime power, and its maritime strategy is playing an increasingly important role in China's overall foreign strategy. Since its inception, the "One Belt and One Road Initiative" has been increasingly seen as the centerpiece of China's new grand strategy, with the "One Road" — the establishment of a "maritime silk road" — serving as the core. Building this "21st-century maritime silk road" will involve more than 20 countries and regions, and the proposal has been strongly welcomed and supported by most countries along the road, as it is seen not only as a new platform for mutually beneficial relationships economically, but also as a new mechanism for maritime security cooperation in the Pacific and the Indian Ocean.

Drawing on the expertise of Chinese and international scholars, the book will focus on China's "21st-century maritime silk road" initiative, evaluate its strategic implication at home and abroad, and provide new proposals and perspectives for its future development.

Remade in Guangdong : How China's World Factory Will Become Innovative / Wei Zhao

Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2020

250p.

9789813223011

$ 98.00 / HB

With China losing its previous competitive edge in manufacturing, industrial upgrading to the stage of innovation-driven development seems to be an imperative. Guangdong and its core region of Pearl River Delta are playing a role of pilot in finding a new development path for the whole country. Whether Guangdong can rebuild its global industrial competitiveness on innovation dynamics is significant to China's economic growth, both current and in the future.

The book explores next-step strategies and policies for transforming Guangdong's industrial development to an innovation level, not only for reviewing its past experience or proving certain development models. A bigger part of the book is contributed to analyze the essential ways that Guangdong emerged as world factory, as well as the current problems encountered by business and government. This is because that the future can be only better prepared when the past and present, the strengths and weaknesses, are clearly identified and understood. The book tries to combine local knowledge and information with theoretical frameworks in the research on innovation management and policy to crystallize the nature of Guangdong's industrial development.

The book presents an in-depth analysis of the rising and challenge of Guangdong as China's world factory. The book serves as an exploring trigger for those who are interested in the future of China's world factory.

Research on Efficiency and Fairness of Resources Allocation by China's Governmental Administration / Hong Sheng & Pu Qian
Series on Chinese Economics Research: Volume 16
Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2019
440p.
9789813278608
$ 170.00 /HB

In China, the government controls a large part of resources, such as land, energy, bank savings, and so on. This book studies the efficiency and fairness of resources allocation by governmental administration in China. The book states that it is neither fair nor efficient to allocate resources by the governmental administrations. These resources should be allocated by the market.

The book analyzes the resources allocation by government administration in three key areas namely education, health care, and land. A quantitative analysis is developed for describing more precisely the situation of unfairness in fiscal resources allocation. This book also describes how ordinary people address the misposition of resources by governmental administrations by migrating from the provinces with less resources to the provinces with more resources in education or health care. Thus, the book concludes that the actual allocation of resources is determined by the interactions between ordinary people and the government.

China's Belt and Road Initiative and Building the Community of Common Destiny / (Eds) Linggui Wang & Jianglin Zhao
Series on China's Belt and Road Initiative: Volume 5
Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2019
292p.

ISBN: 9789813278714

$ 105.00 / HB

China's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) has attracted growing attention from around the world since it was first announced. It is, along with the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB), a critical instrument for realizing what the Chinese government calls the Community of Common Destiny (CCD).

The core idea presented in this volume is that the CCD represents a new paradigm for promoting regional collaboration in socio-economic development, and plays a crucial role in reshaping the international geopolitical landscape. Contributors show that the belief in common development and common security transcends differences in cultural tradition and pre-existing level of development. This belief underlies the commitments among countries and regions participating in the BRI to working closely together in pursuit of shared and sustained prosperity.

The chapters are based on papers presented at "Building the Community of Common Destiny between China and Its Neighbors: Challenges and the Future", an international forum co-organized by the National Institute for Global Strategy of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences and the University of International Relations (China). Thirty experts from more than twenty countries have contributed to this volume.

Industrial Overcapacity and Duplicate Construction in China
Reasons and Solutions / Ping Li, Feitao Jiang & Jianhai Cao
Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2019
292p.

9789813277274

Series on Chinese Economics Research: Volume 15

$ 105.00 / HB

Since 2012, industrial overcapacity has become an increasingly serious problem in China, against the backdrop of domestic economic slowdown and continued downturn in international markets. Overcapacity is widespread in the traditional manufacturing sector, particularly in iron and steel, cement, electrolytic aluminium, flat glass, and ship-building industries. It is also grave in emerging industries such as polysilicon, solar cells, and wind power equipment.

This book provides an overview on the overcapacity problem facing China and examines the main characteristics of overcapacity in some important industries. The book identifies two types of overcapacity: one is excess capacity that results from natural supply-demand dynamics or cyclical economic fluctuations under a relatively sound market system; the other is overcapacity caused by the overinvestment of enterprises under a flawed economic system. It probes into how overcapacity is caused and finds two contributors — change of growth model and institutional flaws. It explores to establish a long-term mechanism for solving the problem. The book concludes that China should establish a long-term mechanism to prevent and resolve overcapacity, and to establish healthy relationship between the market and the government.

Urban Composite Development Index for 17 Shandong Cities :
Ranking and Simulation Analysis Based on China's Five
Development Concepts / Khee Giap Tan (et al.)
Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2019
460p.
9789813272330
$ 175.00 / HB

Shandong is a thriving economic centre with a Gross Regional Domestic Product of RMB 6.3 trillion in 2015, the third-highest in China. It is also the third-largest province by land area in the country with the second-largest resident population of 98,470,000. With such impressive characteristics, Shandong's urbanisation rate had quickly expanded from 45 percent in 2005 to 57 percent in 2017. As such, in line with the growing affluence of the province, the people's ever-growing demand for urban development in areas such as infrastructure, public services, education and environmental protection has exceeded the provision of such facilities.

In view of these developments, the Asia Competitiveness Institute (ACI) at the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy (LKYSPP), National University of Singapore (NUS) developed Shandong's first city-level index which assesses the levels of urban development and liveability for each city. The ranking and simulation analysis via the Urban Composite Development Index for 17 Shandong cities was constructed to provide an empirically robust framework to better understand the quality of urban development of Shandong cities in a comprehensive and rigorous manner, while at the same time highlight important policy implications for further growth and development. Further, this publication incorporates key elements which ensures that the construction of the index is unique, empirically sound and relevant to Shandong's development in the context of China. Overall, the analysis provided in this book relates to the broad dimensions of urban development of Shandong cities and can stand up to academic scrutiny as it is based on rigorous methodological foundations. In addition, the study will remain accessible and appealing to policymakers as it offers tailored policy recommendations based on the analysis that will enable them to take appropriate policy interventions in each city to improve their overall performance in urban development. This research will help to identify the strengths and weaknesses of each city and empower policymakers to formulate more effective development strategies.

Series on Innovation and Operations Management for Chinese Enterprises: Volume 2

Chinese enterprises have relied on importing technology and imitation as their main technology strategies in the past. Based on analysis of cross-countries' case studies and the history of industrial innovation, the authors proposed the concept of industry-driven basic research and expounds the important role of scientific discovery in industrial technological innovation. They are convinced that both the government and enterprises should focus on industry-driven basic research in order to bridge the gap between the government's target and what enterprises actually do in China. The challenge remains to be seen if China can transform Science and technology investment into real industrial innovation capability.

Institutional Change and Rural Industrialization in China : The Putting-Out System in Handicraft Industry in Late Qing and Early Republic Period/ Feizhou Zhou

Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2018

164p.

9789814569910

Peking University Series on Sociology and Anthropology: Volume 5

$ 75.00 / HB

This book explores the development of the putting-out system in hand-woven textile industries in late Qing Dynasty and China's Republican Period. In classic sociology theory, the putting-out system in handcraft production was regarded as traditional and inefficient. In the context of Republican China, it was believed that this kind of household-based production system would have totally failed in competition with the factory system of machinery production. However, this book exhibits the historical fact that the putting-out system was booming in handcraft textile production and subsequently provides an explanation to this phenomenon from the perspectives of institutional analysis and quantitative modeling. With rich county-level data and comprehensive analysis, this book is valuable for both researchers, academics and students in economics and social history studies.

History

Han Xin's Challenge : A Tale of the Foundling of the Western Han / (Translated & Ed) Vibeke Bordahl & Liangyan Ge with Yalong Wang
Nordic Institute of Asian Studies – Voices of Asia Series No. 2
Copenhagen, Denmark: NIAS Press, 2019
xviii, 490p.
9788776942687
$ 99.50 / HB
864gm.

The death of China's first emperor in 210 BCE initiated a brutal power struggle between Xiang Yu, Hegemon-King of Western Chu, and Liu Bang, later founder of the Han dynasty; the lowly Han Xin also strove for advancement. For over 2,000 years, the resulting story has been celebrated in China. Even today its main protagonists are household names. This is an epic tale of courage and cowardice, honour and treachery, acted out by lords, officials and soldiers, mothers, wives and concubines, and has inspired great works of literature, performance and the arts. Yet only recently has this narrative been translated into English – in Western Han: A Yangzhou Storyteller's Script by the same authors (see p. 50). To a large extent, Han Xin's Challenge is a shortened version of Western Han, largely comprising its English translation plus explanatory text. It is more than that, however. The story has been made more accessible to the general reader without compromising the accuracy of the translation. Its text is also illuminated with artwork that brings the narrative to life and shows how embedded the tale is in Chinese culture, even today. The result is a text ideal for the teaching of Chinese history, culture and literature. But also it is a sweeping drama, a page-turner, a story that anyone can enjoy.

Chinese Migrants Write Home : A Dual-Language Anthology of Twentieth-Century Family Letters / (Eds) Gregor Benton, Huimei Zhang & Hong Liu

Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2019
600p.

ISBN: 9789813274921

$ 165.00 / HB

Qiaopi is the name given in Chinese to letters written home by Chinese emigrants to accompany remittances, in the 150 years starting in the 1820s. Qiaopi had numerous functions and dimensions, ranging from economic and social to cultural and political. In June 2013, the Qiaopi Project was officially registered under UNESCO's "Memory of the World" programme, set up in 1992 because of "a growing awareness of the parlous state of preservation of documentary heritage" in the world.

This book presents around one hundred letters from Singapore, China, Malaysia, Thailand, the USA, and Canada, including photographic reproductions of the original letters, transcriptions in Chinese characters, and English translations, where necessary with explanatory notes. Most of the letters collected in Chinese and non-Chinese archives, and in this sourcebook, were products of the Qiaopi system as traditionally defined. A few, especially some to and from North America, especially in the second half of the twentieth century, went through the Post Office, and were not handled by Chinese remittance companies. Not all the letters accompanied remittances.

China's Omnidirectional Peripheral Diplomacy / (Eds) : Jianwei Wang & Tiang Boon Hoo

9789813141780

Series on Contemporary China: Volume 45

Book Details:

In view of its size, and vast land and sea boundaries that it shares with its neighbours, China has always regarded its peripheral policy as a crucial aspect of its national security. Such a mentality conforms to Chinese leaders' core belief that a stable external environment — in particular, its immediate region — remains the sine qua non for the continued and sustained rejuvenation of their nation.

This book examines China's evolving strategies towards its surrounding peripheries. It is the first book to examine in detail President Xi Jinping's steering of China's peripheral diplomacy. It argues that China pursues an ambitious, omnidirectional regional diplomacy that emphasizes the entire periphery region, and not just specific peripheries. According to this book, Chinese regional policy cannot be properly and adequately understood without taking into account its full breadth, substance and scope.

Featuring chapters that explore China's evolving policy in Northeast Asia, Southeast Asia, South Asia and Central Asia, and addressing new developments under Xi, this book fleshes out the intricacies of how China has been managing its peripheral relationships in Asia under new circumstances and new leadership.
