Indians in America
One Stream, Two Waves, Three Generations

Author : Pravin Sheth

This book narrates the diasporic saga covering pre-1950 stream, and two waves (post 1965, and 1980), and profiles the three generations. It examines empirically the gaps in the perceptions and priorities of the first-generation parents, their second-generation children, and the elderly. It also probes the complex relationship pattern of the emerging new Indian woman in the family as well as the latent phenomenon of domestic violence.

The book further evinces how religion and ethno-cultural movements, performing arts and movies are helping in the preservation of Indian Culture, and in the process of identity formation. The first of its kind presenting a comprehensive account of the Indian Diaspora in America.

Thailand's Crisis

Author : Pasuk Phongpaichit & Chris Baker

This book is not so much about getting into a crisis as getting through one. It reviews what the IMF did, who got hurt, what worked and what failed in the economic and social management of the crisis. This is a lucid and highly readable account of how Thailand reacted as a society and culture to its worst-ever economic disaster. The final chapters review the changes and lessons from 1997-2000 and speculate on how these changes will frame the future.

A Demographic History of the Indonesian Archipelago 1880-1942 Author : Hans Gooszen

It is widely accepted that population growth in the final decades of colonial rule foreshadowed the accelerated growth observed in post-colonial Asia. Little is known, however, about the actual rates of growth and the considerable regional variations in demographic processes characterizing those final decades. The author offers a reconstruction of regional variations in the growth of the indigenous population of Indonesia from 1880 till the Japanese invasion in 1942.
