Entrepreneurship and the Internationalisation of Asian firms
An Institutional Perspective
Author : Henry Wai-Chung Yeung

Entrepreneurs engaging in international business face business environments that are fundamentally different from their home countries. Despite decades of entrepreneurship research, we know little about these entrepreneurs and their strategic behaviour in establishing and managing transnational operations. This book applies an institutional perspective on transnational entrepreneurship to empirical investigations of transnational corporations from Hong Kong and Singapore. Henry Wai-Chung Yeung argues that significant variations in institutional structure of home countries explain variations in the entrepreneurial endowments of prospective transnational business networks. This is illustrated by empirical data from two in depth studies of over 300 TNCs from Hong Kong and Singapore and over 120 of their foreign affiliates in Asia.

Entrepreneurship in Vietnam
Transformation and Dynamics
Editors : Per Ronnas; Bhargavi Ramamurthy

The Private small-scale manufacturing sector has emerged as a key actor in the development of Vietnam's economy since the Launching of market-oriented reforms(doi moi) in the late 1980s. Yet until now little has been known about the Nature and dynamics of this sector during this crucial period. The lack of hard data on these developments is addressed In the present study, which draws on a comprehensive survey in 1991 of some 1000 non-state manufacturing enterprises, A repeat survey in 1997 of some 400 of the same enterprises, and a parallel survey in the same year of a further 500 Enterprises not previously surveyed. The result is an in-depth analysis of the development and transformation of the sector

Principles of Insurance Law
Author : Dr. Poh Chu Chai

Fifth Edition

In the intervening years since the last edition, there have been significant developments both in the areas of case law and on the legislative front. In Malaysia, a new Insurance Act 1996 was enacted to replace the Insurance Act of 1963 and significant changes were made by the new Act. In the area of case law, many notable decisions have emerged from the courts in Singapore, Malaysia and the United Kingdom. Areas of insurance law effected include the insured's duty of disclosure, subrogation, the formation of insurance contracts and its terms, insurance agents and brokers, the construction of policies and the principle of indemnity, amongst others.

Butterworths Business Law Series – Company Law

Editors : Victor CS Yeo , Pearlie M C Koh

The law relating to companies is often perceived as complicated and based on complex legislation and case law. This has led to parties who deal with, or are involved in the operating of, companies to have little knowledge or understanding of company law. Such a situation is not ideal as companies must operate within the framework provided by the law. Failure to appreciate the basic principles and issues within this framework can only spell danger for the company and those having a business relationship with it.

Company Law aims to present the basic principles of company law, its function and operation in a succinct and practical manner. The book examines the impact of the law on a company's internal affairs, external affairs, expansion and organisation. It also discusses how the law resolves disputes among parties who have competing interests vis-à-vis the company and addresses the major issues in corporate insolvency and its alternatives. It is an invaluable tool for directors, shareholders, managers, creditors and all others who have the opportunity or inclination to work in a corporate environment or deal with companies.

Butterworths Business Law Series – Finance Law

Author : Pauline Gan , Loo Wee Ling

Pub : Butterworths, Singapore Year : 1999 ISBN : 9812360298 Bib : 306pp Price : US$ 35.00

The area of finance is an increasingly complex and specialised one; likewise the law pertaining to finance. Business persons and financiers who seek an understanding of finance law would probably find the law books on the subject both inaccessible and indigestible. Yet it is important that there be available to them a simple and sufficiently comprehensive introductory source of information on the methods of finance and security and how the law affects the manner in which they enter into financing arrangements.

Finance Law attempts to meet this need. The book is written, as far as possible, in lay language and is organised in a way that is meaningful to the business person and financier. The reader is taken through the legal significance of the role of a banker in relation to its customer which is engaged in business to the various methods of financing common to a business. The important considerations and key legal issues arising in entering into a financing arrangement are highlighted. Then, the various possibilities of providing security and the basic legal principles involved in each type of security are delved into. Finally, the remedies available to a financier in the event something goes wrong with the financing arrangement is discussed. Simple illustrations and real life case examples are employed to make the legal principles and issues relevant and easy to comprehend.

Investment in Southeast Asia – Policy and Laws

Author : Paul J Davidson , Franca Ciambella

To invest and carry out business in a foreign country, it is essential to have knowledge of the political, economic, legal and social factors affecting the business in that country.

Investment in Southeast Asia – Policy and Laws provides the potential investor and legal adviser with a broad overview of the investment policy and the business laws and investment procedures of select countries in Southeast Asia, in particular, those which form the Association of South East Asian Nations – Brunei Darussalam, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam – and Laos. Its purpose is to introduce the investor and legal adviser to the importance of investment policy and to provide an elaboration of those laws and procedures with which they should be familiar when carrying out businesses in the various countries. While the policies, laws and procedures have many similarities there are also numerous differences of which the investor and legal adviser should be aware.

There are altogether 11 chapters in the two looseleaf volumes, and each of the country chapters will generally be organized along the same format for ease of comparison. This looseleaf work will keep business persons and legal advisors up-to-date on the changes in the legal environment in Southeast Asia through bi-annual updates.
