Quirky, Enigmatic and Uniquely Beautiful, the art and furnishing of Central and East Java's villages and palaces are little known to the art historians, museum curators and collectors of the world. Armed with many charms – including bold colours, dynamic design motifs, skilful carving, humour and social commentary – Javanese art is the product of a complex and ancient culture renowned for its ability to pick and choose from outside influences, while forming an original – and undeniably Javanese – creation. With more than 400 striking photographs and lively analysis, Javanese Antique Furniture and Folk Art untangles the fascinating web of historical and cultural influences embodied in each example of this remarkable, and often under-appreciated, art form.

The Javanese Kris / Isaac Groneman
Leiden: C. Zwartenkot Art Books & KITLV Press, 2009
187p,; 29cm
ISBN-13: 9789054500063 (HB)
$ 120.00

Groneman describes in minute detail the forging of a number of blades and the manufacture of the other parts of the kris, and then places it all in a broader historical and cultural framework. His articles were inspired by a strong interest in how Javanese krisses were forged, but also by his great concern that this craft that he admired so much, was at risk of bleeding to death and disappearing from the face of the earth.
