Dissatisfaction has matured in Africa and elsewhere around the fact that often, the dominant frameworks for interpreting the continent's past are not rooted on the continent's value system and philosophy. This creates knowledge that does not make sense especially to local communities. The big question therefore is can Africans develop theories that can contribute towards the interpretation of the African past, using their own experiences? Framed within a concept revision substrate, the collection of papers in this thought provoking volume argues for concept revision as a step towards decolonizing knowledge in the post-colony. The various papers powerfully expose that 'cleansed' knowledge is not only locally relevant: it is also locally accessible and globally understandable.

When the achievements of great individuals are exaggerated, an enormous shadow is cast over the work of their subordinates. This happened in accounts of the founding of the British settlement at Singapore in 1819 in which Sir Stamford Raffles has been aggrandised at the expense of Major General William Farquhar. Venerated by contemporary Bugis, Chinese and Indians for his character and accomplishments, Farquhar claimed that he was largely responsible for Singapore's rapid development and commercial success. However, his claims have largely been obscured by the glorification of Raffles.

In this ground-breaking and carefully documented book Nadia Wright re-examines both East India Company records and contemporary material to investigate the input of Raffles and Farquhar into Singapore's founding and development. This book reveals new and sometimes startling insights into the achievements and personalities of both men, and explains why Farquhar was overlooked for so long.

Epitaph: The Northam Road Protestant Cemetery, George Town, Penang /
(Author) Marcus Langdon (2 parts in a boxed set)
George Town World Heritage Incorporated, Malaysia 2017
2parts; 32cm.
9789671228197
$ 100.00 / HB
5000 gm.

The Northam Road Cemetery is probably the first burial ground to have been established following settlement of Penang by the British East India Company in 1786. It is certainly the first Christian cemetery, catering to both Roman Catholic and Protestant burials.

This richly illustrated, beautifully produced, limited-edition two-part boxed set is the most definitive work ever published about the Protestant side of this cemetery. Covering all 464 surviving memorials and tombs, with background stories to most of the identifiable persons interred there, it captures an invaluable and enthralling snapshot of a section of Penang's inhabitants during the settlement's first 100 years. It also contains a list of 1,437 names of other persons known to have been interred in the same cemetery during that time. As such it is not only a valuable social record but a rich source of genealogical and historical information on the European population during Penang's first century under British administration.

Penang Hill: A Journey Through Time / Mike Gibby
Entrepot Publishing, Malaysia 2017
256p.
9789671428122
$ 45.00 / HB

Penang Hill, Bukit Bendera, means a great many things to a great many people. Last year over 1.6 million people travelled by the train and the jeep track to the summit to take in the same views that have been drawing visitors for well over 200 years. First a lookout post for the British East India Company during the Napoleonic Wars, it soon became the first 'hill station' and convalescent retreat in the entire region, preceding those of British India by some 20 years.

Today, as then, Penang Hill draws residents and visitors to its cooler climes. With stunning views in all directions, numerous pathways, historic bungalows, pleasing forest habitats and a rich resident population of birds, animals and insects, it is indeed a very special place. The original steep, winding access road is still used today and its famous funicular railway features the steepest tunnel in the world. Mike Gibby has captured – for the first time – not only the fascinating 'journey through time' of Penang Hill but also what it means to visitors, residents, Penang and the world, including a discussion of its possible futures and a helpful walker's guide for discovering many of its hidden gems. Lavishly illustrated with over 500 images, many never seen before, this is truly a book to treasure.

A stunning publication covering all aspects of the iconic Penang Hill. Packed with a smorgasboard of images, from the earliest days of occupation through to the current day, this book will take the reader on a wonderful journey through time, leaving no stone unturned. What better keepsake for both Malaysian and international residents and visitors to add to their collection.
