1768gm.

The legacy of Tipu Sultan and Haider Ali is as alive today as it was more than two centuries ago, when this father and son fought tirelessly against British imperialism in India. The most eloquent expression of their resistance is the large number of works that were made during their era in Mysore. Such was the respect that the British victors of the Anglo-Mysore Wars felt for the technical and aesthetic accomplishments of their adversaries, many of these masterworks have survived intact. The Islamic Arts Museum Malaysia has assembled the finest collection of such works that exists outside the UK. These stirring reminders of a lost Muslim kingdom in southern India are now on public display, in many cases for the first time since they were looted by the British from the ruins of Tipu Sultan's fortress in Srirangapatna in 1799.

"A promise made. A war was fought. A system challenged. At eighteen, he entered the ranks as just another recruit. What followed was a relentless climb: from punishing boot camps to becoming a commissioned officer, from jungle firefights during the communist insurgency to the blood-soaked chaos of Somalia. But this isn't just a war story. It's the raw, untold truth of serving King and Country while fighting a quieter, crueler war within the system itself. Brutal. Honest. Unforgettable. This memoir pulls no punches because some battles don't end with a ceasefire. Loyal to the flag. Betrayed by the fabric. He fought for a country that didn't always fight for him."

This richly illustrated volume revisits the longhouse of Nanga Jela, which once stood above the Engkari River in the upper Batang Ai. In 1973, it was home to 38 Iban families whose deep knowledge of agriculture, landscape, and tradition shaped a unique way of life. That world was submerged in 1985 with the construction of the Batang Ai Hydroelectric Dam. Return to Nanga Jela offers a moving recollection of this vanished landscape, its culture, and its meaning.

Three months to the end of WWII, confronted by the imminent seaborne invasion of North Borneo by overwhelmingly superior Allied forces, the desperate Japanese military chose to withdraw into the country's interior where they would consolidate for a last stand around their commander Lt. Gen. Baba in Sapong, Tenom. On 18 May 1945, in direct preparation for the last stand, they decided to eliminate all dangerous anti-Japanese suspects who could disrupt their consolidation or provide incriminating evidence of Japanese atrocities. All Catholic missionaries in North Borneo were forcefully detained on 19 and 20 May 1945 and taken to Tenom. Detained together with them were also their three local servants. None of them were ever seen again. This book tells the harrowing story of why and how nine forthright and good men became innocent victims fated to pay the ultimate sacrifice.

The Law of Motor Insurance, 2nd Edition / S. Santhana Dass
1v.
$ 240.00 / HB

This second edition of The Law of Motor Insurance offers a timely and authoritative guide to the current legal frameworks governing motor insurance in Malaysia. It highlights judicial trends, identifies regulatory gaps, and provides recommendations for policy reforms aimed at enhancing protection for insurers, insured parties, and passengers.

Rich with case law analysis, policy critique and reform-oriented insights, this book is indispensable for legal practitioners, insurance professionals, academics, and policymakers seeking to navigate the nuances of motor insurance law in Malaysia.

From the cross-border implications raised in Nippon Fire v Sim Jin Hwee to the definition and scope of “road” under the Road Transport Act 1987, this book tackles crucial legal uncertainties affecting motorists, insurers and third-party claimants alike. It delves into unresolved issues such as liability on private and gated roads, carpooling and gaps in e-hailing coverage, along with compulsory passenger liability. Of key significance are the judicial pronouncements reshaping the legal landscape, including the Federal Court’s decisions in Malaysian Motor Insurance Pool v Tirumeniyar and Chen Boon Kwee v Berjaya Sompoo Insurance Bhd.

This publication is authored by a practitioner who is no stranger to motor insurance matters, having had more than four decades of experience as a practitioner. His knowledge, experience, and insights shine through in this comprehensive and authoritative reference.

his newly updated edition captures significant changes in family law over the past six years, offering legal professionals and advisers a comprehensive, practical, and insightful resource tailored to address today's complex realities.

Readers will gain in-depth understanding of recent court judgments that are shaping family law in Malaysia, covering critical issues such as jurisdictional limits, law relating to children, citizenship rights, inheritance rights for illegitimate children, and disputes over religious conversion. This publication also examines how shifting family dynamics, diverse family structures, and technological advancements influence legal principles – from spousal maintenance and asset division to custody arrangements and the use of digital evidence in court. Additionally, it explores emerging areas like the impact of the use of reproductive technologies, surrogacy, and the complex legal challenges posed by digital communication.

This book offers readers the most up-to-date legal developments and case analyses, ensuring they stay well-informed. Authored by seasoned legal experts, it also benefits from the distinguished oversight of two eminent judges with deep knowledge of family law, adding exceptional credibility and depth to the content.

To align with international best practices, a new chapter on collaborative law has been introduced. This approach focuses on minimising conflict and prioritising the best interests of all parties involved – especially children – in the resolution of family conflicts, further enhancing the publication’s relevance and value.

Corporate finance is essential for a company's long-term success, encompassing the management of its financial resources to maximize shareholder value and ensure financial stability. It involves crucial decisions related to capital allocation, risk management, and financial performance, ultimately guiding the company towards its strategic goals.

This book has been prepared as a reference for stakeholders within the financial industry that delves into corporate finance. It also provides valuable guidance to the management of corporations and businesses on the structuring of financing to drive business growth. Savvy investors can similarly derive benefit from the practical discussions contained in the book.

The regulatory framework administered by Bank Negara Malaysia, Securities Commission Malaysia and Labuan Financial Services Authority has been carefully considered to cover key legislation like the Financial Services Act 2013, the Islamic Financial Services Act 2013 and the Capital Markets and Services Act 2007 as well as the accompanying rules, regulations and guidelines.

Debt financing through bank facilities and instruments and private debt securities such as bonds, sukuk and initial exchange offerings, and equity financing through initial public offering and direct financing (venture capital, crowdfunding and private equity fund), are usefully analysed, supported by illustrative case studies. The law on takeover and merger and acquisition is focused on in one chapter as these are key avenues for business growth where corporate finance can come into play.

Important related matters of insider trading and risk management are critically reviewed to give a complete perspective of the operation of corporate finance. The role of board of directors and shareholder activism as well environmental, social and governance (ESG) considerations in corporate finance are looked at to provide a full appreciation of corporate finance law in practice.

This book is surely one not to be missed by corporate lawyers, finance directors, company directors, in-house counsel, bankers, business owners and informed investors.

Land Acquisition Proceedings | Principles & Practice Malaysia / Dato' R. K. Nandy
Malaysia: Marsden Books, 2025
578p.
9786299501527
$ 250.00 / HB

In a legal landscape where private land ownership intersects with the State's authority to acquire land for public purposes, Land Acquisition Proceedings: Principles and Procedure in Malaysia offers a timely and comprehensive examination of this complex area of law. Dato' R.K. Nandy masterfully unpacks the doctrine of dominium eminens—the State's right to compulsory acquisition—against the protective framework provided under Article 13 of the Federal Constitution and the Land Acquisition Act 1960 (Act 486).

With detailed reference to constitutional guarantees, statutory safeguards, and landmark decisions—including Tegas Sejati Sdn Bhd v Pentadbir Tanah dan Galian Hulu Langat & Anor and other recent Federal Court rulings—the author presents a structured and accessible narrative of the legal principles, procedures, and remedies involved in land acquisition proceedings.

This book is meticulously organized in accordance with the format and structure of Act 486, including its most recent amendment via the Land Acquisition (Amendment) Act 2016 (Act A1517). It also delves into judicial review and other forms of legal redress available to landowners, offering critical insights into the mechanisms that uphold fairness and justice in compulsory land acquisition.

Written with both depth and clarity, this work is an essential reference for judges, legal practitioners, law students, valuers, and professionals involved in property and land development. With a strong grounding in both statutory interpretation and practical application, this authoritative volume stands as a vital contribution to Malaysia's legal scholarship.

Law and Practice of Intellectual Property Law in Malaysia / Wong Kian Kheong & Indran Shanmuganathan
(General Editors)

Malaysia : Sweet & Maxwell, 2025

1v.

9786297700557

DUO (HB + ebook)

$ 290.00 / HB

This textbook provides practical insights and guidance from an experienced group of intellectual property (IP) law practitioners explaining the law, practice and procedure of protecting and enforcing IP rights in Malaysia. Edited by an eminent judge and an accomplished IP law practitioner, this book is structured into five principal parts covering Trademarks, Patents, Copyright, Industrial Designs and Trade Secrets. The expert commentary presents a comprehensive account of the substantive rules that govern these areas of IP law, with the focus being primarily on the Malaysian position.

In addition to the thorough survey of local law, references have been made to case law from foreign jurisdictions where uncertainties arise in the local position. This provides a different perspective on possible approaches that may be applicable in addressing the local issues and the strategic planning of IP enforcement action in Malaysia. References to applicable international treaties and conventions ensure that coverage is complete and authoritative. The amendments brought in by the Copyright (Amendment) Act 2022 (Act A1645) and the Patents (Amendment) Act 2022 (Act A1649) as well as the accompanying new subsidiary legislation have been carefully considered.

This reference guide is one not to be missed by IP law practitioners, trademark and patent agents, in-house counsel, business owners and anyone interested in Malaysian IP law.

KUA KIA SOONG'S latest provocative title is a bold and urgent examination of a country teetering between revival and decline. Once an emerging "Asian Tiger," Malaysia now grapples with political paralysis, economic stagnation, and deep social divisions. This incisive book dissects the systemic failures holding the nation back – corrupt governance, a broken race-based economic model, environmental neglect, and a brain drain sapping its potential. Yet, amid these challenges lies hope: a new generation demanding change, untapped green-energy opportunities, and a chance to redefine national unity.
