The South Shaping The Global Future : Six Decades of the South-North
Development Struggle in the UN / Branislav Gosovic
Dar es Salaam: Mkuki na Nyota Publishers Ltd, 2017
xii, 172p.

This monograph offers a broad overview of a continuing South-North development encounter in the United Nations. It is especially intended for the students of the subject and for all who have little opportunity to gain knowledge of the essence of the developing countries decades-long collective efforts in the international arena vis-a-vis the tenacious North-dominated hegemonic world order, one deeply rooted in the age of colonialism and imperialism. This background knowledge and awareness is required in the Global South's continued struggle for development, for the protection of the developing countries' political and economic sovereignty, and for their efforts in the United Nations for democratization, equity and change in international political and economic relations.

The Political Economy of Change in Tanzania: Contestations over Identity, the Constitution and Resources is a must read for all students of Tanzanian politics. This book provides the most holistic account of the direction of political change in Tanzania using a political economy approach to examine religion and gender identities, political competition, the suspended effort of constitution-making, the often conflicts surrounding natural resource and myriad inter-related violent problems preventing the state from making quality social services accessible. Economics, Tanzanian scholars from the Fine and Performing Arts Geography, and have collaborated to provide interdisciplinary insights, focusing on a turbulent phase of Tanzania's political history characterized by rising religious tensions, the growing strength and assertiveness of opposition parties, tensions in between the Mainland push for a new constitution, growing conflicts and increasing public dissatisfaction with corruption and lousy public services. The book a and detailed picture of the problems facing the President Magufuli's government as it charts its course to win confidence and mobilize societal resources for national development.

A Son of Two Countries is a story of struggle for education. Born in 1946 in Rwanda under Belgian colonial rule, the author recounts his early education in Rwanda and later as a refugee in Tanzania. He was naturalize as a Tanzanian citizen in 1980 while doing his undergraduate studies at the University of Dar es Salaam. As he struggled to get education, the author was also grappling with his refugee status, with all the challenges that is entailed.

The book gives insights into the contradictions of colonial and post-colonial education, as well as the author's reflections on education in Tanzania, given his long experience in the education sector in that country. Finally, we get some glimpses into the dual identity of the author as a Tanzanian citizen of Rwandan origin and how this shaped his relationship with the two countries he calls home. As he aptly puts it, "Rwanda give me my heart; Tanzania gave me my brain. I find it difficult to choose between my heart and my brain"

Tanzania, the land and the people have been subject of a great deal of historical research, but there remains no readily accessible and concise history of the country. The aim of this volume is to fill that void. A New History of Tanzania takes its name from a lecture series introduced at the University of Dar es Salaam by Professor Isaria Kinambo in 2002. Prior to that, a book titled, A History of Tanzania, had been published in 1969 by East African Publishing House in Nairobi for the Tanzania Historical Association. That book is currently out of print and this is not a reprint. In Gregory H. Maddox of Texas Southern University, Houston (USA) and Salvatory S. Nyanto, a Tanzanian, Lecturer at the University of Dar es Salaam, and a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Iowa (USA); together they have produced an outline history of Tanzania that covers all important aspects from antiquity to the present that is different from and richer than its predecessor. Sources from the fields of archeology, anthropology, biology; genetics and oral tradition have been used to produce this excellent book.

A New History of Tanzania is a timely contribution to academic requirements for teaching and learning Tanzania's history. It is also a possible exemplar to the writing of other countries' histories, departing as it does, from the traditional historiography that is influenced by colonial and postcolonial apologists of nefarious external influences on Africa's history. It will also interest other Tanzanians and visitors to Tanzania who are interested in understanding the country from when it was a territory with more than one hundred and twenty ethnic groups, to a nation with an unmistakable identity as it marches forward.

The Nile is the longest river in the world. Throughout history it has been associated with myth, curiosity, awe, and has been a subject of much research. The Nile is a source of civilization, a facilitator of trade over ages, the center of empires, and it is responsible for the development of knowledge, science and technology. The River Nile and its basin unites 11 African countries, namely; Burundi, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Egypt, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Kenya, Rwanda, South Sudan, Tanzania, and Uganda. The Central African Republic contributes a minute's portion of the Basin.

This book: BRIDGE ACROSS THE RIVER NILE, examines in detail the history, geography, engineering, and the geopolitics and challenges of cooperation among the riparian states of the Nile. A number of experts in trans boundary rivers, political scientists and politicians have predicted that should there be another major world war, it will result from serious disagreements about the sharing and utilization of transboundary waters. The writer of this book, Professor Mark Mwandosya, is not one of those who subscribe to the belief that the worst will happen in transboundary water cooperation or the lack of it. He is convinced that the River Nile has over millennia been, is and will continue to be a bridge across basin inhabitants, cultures, riparian states. This conviction is based on his experience in transboundary water negotiations and in particular, negotiations which led to the finalization and promulgation of the Nile Basin Cooperative Framework Agreement (CFA).

BRIDGE ACROSS THE RIVER NILE inspires the reader to explore and obtain a deep understanding of the geopolitics of international River basins and the River basins in particular. It is an informative reference source for the general public, bureaucrats, politicians, teachers and lectures, students, scholars and researchers in trans boundary waters.
