$ 32.50

[Lake Lanao or Ranao is where the Maranaws Live and die. On its shores, the Maranaws build their torogan, s lavishly carved wooden houses which traditionally served both as residences and offices of the ruling sultans. Their mosques in which they seek Allah's forgiveness and blessings five times a day dot the lake's shores. From fish that are caught in the lake, the Maranaws derive their protein needs. They also travel in boats around the lake. Maranaw life, society, traditions, beliefs, and culture revolve around the lake. Without, it the Maranaw is nothing an aimless wanderer.]

 Peasants in the Hills : A study of the dynamics of social change among the Buhid Swidden Cultivators in the Philippines / Violeta Lopez-Gonzaga
 Philippine : University of Philippines Press,2002

 $ 17.00

[Mario D.Zamora, Professor of anthropology at the College of William and Mary Williamsburg, Virginia, U.S.A. says Ms.Gonzaga's work is not only the first major research on the Buhid of Mindoro; it is also one of the few post-martial law studies by anthropologists dealing directly with the subject of forced or directed change by the Government.... Her data on the articulation/incorporation of the Buhid with new political and socioeconomic structures [mainly brought about by the Marcos regime] are refreshing and undoubtedly useful to planners, development specialist social scientist, among others. The tremendous data she collected, presented and analyzed in support of her theoretical stance have applied value for all those concerned with modernizing the Philippines, especially the minority groups including the swidden agriculturists in Mindoro...]

 Gongs and Bamboo : A Panorama of Philippine Music Instruments / Jose Maceda
 Philippine : University of the Philippines Press,1998
 xiv, 326 p.; ill; 30cm.
 971-542-124-5
 $ 50.00

[This panorama is a pictorial view of music instruments starting with older bamboo and other instruments of undetermined age, going on two types of gongs-flat in Northern Luzon and bossed in the South. These two areas may be viewed as pocket cultures comparable to other pockets cultures comparable to other pockets in Vorneo, Sumatra, other islands in Southeast Asia and the mountain regions south of, and including, Yunnan province of China, thus placing the music of Luzon and Mindanao in a larger geographical context. For example, mouth organs in Borneo and continental southeast Asia are absent in the Philippines, where, however, separate pipes of panpipes are on occasion still being played by groups of boys among the Kalingga of Luzon. The musical elements of drone and melody identified in two lutes in Borneo or ensembles in Yunnan find examples in two players of the same tube zither in Mindanao and flat gongs in Luzon.]

Liturgical Guidelines on Church Architecture / Paul VI
 2nd Printing
 Pasay City : Paulines Publishing House, 2000
 52 p.; 18cm.
 971-590-305-3
 $ 10.00

[Approved by the Catholic Bishops conference of the Philippines (January 1999), these guidelines aim to disseminate basic information about the construction, restoration, remodeling, and interior arrangement of church buildings. The document is a collection of the chief liturgical principles and practical norms enunciated by the official documents issues at different times by the Holy See and the CBCP. It makes recommendations drawn from liturgical tradition and pastoral practice endorsed by the reform of Vatican II, and offers criteria for inculturating church architecture.]

 971-542-167-9
 $ 20.00

[This book is the fruit of two decades of research and association with the social realists and other protest and revolutionary artists in the subject which has consistently engaged the author. Here she goes to the origins of protest art in the 19th Century and pursues it to its full flourishing in the Marcos regime and to the forms it took during the Cory Aquino government. The examples have also been drawn from the production of the two decades. While the book traces the history of protest / Revolutionary art, it also projects its trajectory into the future as new issues emerge to engage the political artist in the struggle for a just and truly human order.]

Bencab / Krip Yuson and Cid Reyes
 Manila : Mantes Publishing, Inc., c2002
 288 p.; ill.; 31cm.
 971-92340-0-8
 $ 180.00

[Widely known as "Bencab," Filipino artist Benedicto Cabrera Occupies a secure and permanent place in the history of contemporary Philippine art. Premised on the strength of draftsmanship and driven by images that have struck emotional chords in the national consciousness, his art possesses that rare quality : an authentic kinship between artist and audience.

The first section of the book, "Hand over Heart : A life for Bencab" is written by Palanca Hall of Famer and personal friend, Krip Yuson. The second part of the book, The Art of Being Filipino, the essay argues for the aesthetic potency and significance of all of Bencab's visual themes.]

Muslim and Christian Cultures : In Search of Commonalities / Edited by Florangel Rosario – Braid
 Manila : Asian Institute of Journalism and Communication and the UNESCO national Commission of the Philippines, c2002
 xiv, 262 p.; 25cm.
 $ 35.00

[This book presents a fresh perspective by using communication as the disciplinary framework and highlighting commonalities. This book is a "first" in the sense that it examines the tenets found in religion and culture which in fact are basic and fundamental. Thus the papers drew heavily from the Bible, the Qur'an and the 1987 constitution as well as from early historical accounts and teachings of Muslim and Christian scholars.]

 Towards a National Competition Policy for the Philippines / Edited by Erlinda M. Medalla

Makati City : Philippine APEC study center Network (PASCN) and the Philippine Institute for Development Studies (PIDS), c2002

xvii, 405 p.; 23cm.

971-564-052-4

$ 42.00

[After more than three decades of protectionism, the Philippines is now shifting toward a more open economy through liberalization, deregulation, and privatization. The reforms that started in the mid-1980s have contributed to moving the economy toward a more market – friendly policy environment. In the process, however, new problems have merged, the most pressing of which pertain to the anticompetitive behaviour of some industry players who would rather avoid competition and exercise some control to gain market power. And while there is a proliferation of laws governing competition, there appears to be a lack of a consistent, comprehensive, and rational competition policy. The role of the national competition policy thus becomes both utilitarian and timely to ensure that the market works effectively and produces economic efficiency, and consumers get substantial and ongoing benefits.]

 The Philippines Beyond 2000 : An Economic assessment / Edited by Josef T. Yap

Makati City : Philippine Institute for Development Studies, c2002

vii, 654 p.; 23cm.

971-564-034-6

$ 39.00

[The Philippines Beyond 2000 : An Economic assessment recommends that policy managers must give equal attention to the goals of macroeconomic stability and the enhancement of efficiency at the microeconomic level by placing importance on an effective bureaucracy and greater income equality cum lower poverty incidence.

A Compilation of 13 studies, this volume reviews the economic performance and policy developments during the Ramos regime and was originally meant to provide an economic blueprint for the Estrada administration. However, the focal point of the studies are policies that would be useful beyond 2000.]

 971-564-038-9
 $ 15.00

[The State of the Philippine Housing Programs is a Critical study on housing subsidies, one of the principal instruments the government uses to provide the lower income segment of the population access to decent housing. Each year, the government spends large fiscal resources to finance the subsidy programs. These resources have competing, alternative uses, and any misallocation imposes costs to society. And with the huge fiscal deficit that the country is currently facing, it is but both utilitarian and timely to review the especially the various subsidies. Despite the provision of these housing subsidies, a large majority of the urban poor are still housed in overcrowded shanties within slum settlements or in makeshift dwellings. Does this mean that the housing subsidies have not been successful in helping their intended beneficiaries get a decent shelter? Find our the answers from this book.]

 Impact of the East Asian Financial Crisis Revisited / Edited by Shahid Khandker Makati City : Philippine Institute for Development Studies & The World Bank Institute, Washington D.C.), c2002
 xxii, 294 p.; 23cm.
 971-564-048-9
 $ 25.00

[This volume tackles the economic and social impacts of the financial crisis on six East Asian Countries that experienced many of the crisis worst effects : Malaysia, Thailand, South Korea, Indonesia, China and the Philippines. It presents the analyses of the crisis impacts carried out by researchers and analysts of the six countries and also evaluates the government programs and policies implemented to mitigate the negative impacts on the various sectors. More importantly, this volume discusses the lessons that can be learned from the crisis and provides important policy recommendations that could help government officials and policymakers alike to better handle crises in the future.]

 China's Economic Growth and the Asean / Edited by Ellen H. Palanca
 Makati City : Philippine APEC study center Network (PASCN) and the Philippine Institute for Development Studies (PIDS), c2001
 xxi, 305 p.; 23cm.
 971-564-032-x
 $ 34.00

[China's phenomenal rise as an economic giant in the past two decades poses a paradox to the ASEAN countries. On the one hand, China is viewed as a competitor, vying for a share in the world market for the same kind of labour intensive export products. On the other hand, its economic growth offers new investment opportunities and markets for the ASEAN countries. Overall, the running conclusion in this volume indicates that engaging China economically and politically is very much in the interest of the individual ASEN countries and the region as a whole.]

Analysis of the President's Budget for 2002 : Accounting for New modes of Financing the Fiscal Deficit / Rosario G. Manasan xvi, 288 p.; 23cm.

Makati City : Philippine Institute for Development Studies, c2002

971-564-051-6

$ 18.00

[This second offering of the Annual Budget analysis series once again underscores the tight financial position faced by the national government, especially as the level of the country's fiscal deficit continues to rise. The main paper examines some of the new schemes recently taken up by the national government to finance the budget deficit. Whether or not these schemes indeed generate more revenues for the government is taken up in the study.

Meanwhile, the accompanying special papers evaluate the capability and absorptive capacity of the department of the public works and Highways, and the department of Health to implement locally funded and foreign-assisted programs and projects. Both studies provide critical information on the extent and magnitude of resource utilization and look for the factors that hinder the full absorption of available resources.]

Economic Crisis... Once More / Edited by Mario B. Lamberte

2nd Printing

Makati City : Philippine Institute for Development Studies (PIDS), c2002

458 p.; 23cm.

971-564-033-8

$ 46.00

[Economic Crisis...Once More is a collection of 15 exhaustive studies on the recent East Asian Financial Crisis. This volume attempts to understand the nature and causes of the Crisis, examines its impact on the domestic economy and recommends some measures to mitigate the native impact on various sectors in the short run and reduce the vulnerability of the economy to another currency crisis in the long run as well.

The lessons learned from this volume can certainly be useful in formulating policies and instituting measures to prevent the occurrence of another currency crisis, reduce its adverse effects should one occur, and better manage risks that may emerge as the country's economy deepens its integration with the rest of the world.]

Managing Urbanization : Under a Decentralized Governance Framework :

Volume 1 & 2 / Edited by Rosario G. Manasan

Quezon City : Demographic Research and Development Foundation (DRDF), Inc., and Philippine Institute for Development Studies, Makati City, c2002

v. ; 23cm.

971-564-047-8 (Vol.1)

971-564-037-0 (Vol.2)

$ 27.00 (Vol.1.)

$ 21.00 (Vol.2.)

[The first volume documents the urbanization process in selected Philippine cities in the context of a decentralized environment for governance resulting from the passage of the local government code of 1991. It shows the impacts of decentralization on the way governance takes place at the local level, and how urbanization, which has impinged heavily on the fiscal conditions of the various localities, is being managed. The Second volume offers the institutional details of managing and delivering urban services. This second volume, meanwhile, explores the setting in which these services are being delivered – one of rapid urbanization mostly unaccompanied by balanced regional growth – and the forces that have helped shape this environment.]

 971-550-422-1
 $ 19.25

[This is an engaging exploration of Philippine cultural history. It is striking for the diversity of texts it takes up : the legend of a mountain goddess, Pigafetta's discovery account of the Philippines, the life of a seventeenth-century Christian convert, the foundation narrative of a Marian shrine, colonial books of conduct, memoirs of Filipino intellectuals, a Bisayan love poem, political talk on radio, a dinner in nineteenth-century Cebu. A singleness of purpose guides the reader through a forest of texts toward an appreciation of the larger issues of cultural politics and national formation.

This collection of essays rewards the reader with the richness and originality of its insights. It is a model for the study of Philippine history and culture.]

 The Philippine Revolution of 1896 : Ordinary Lives in Extraordinary Times / Edited by Florentino Rodao and Felice Noelle Rodriguez
 Philippine : Ateneo De Manila University Press,c2001
 vii, 305 p.; 23 cm.
 971-550-386-1
 Includes Index
 $ 20.00

[The Revolution of 1896 marks the birth of the Filipino nation. It was a time when propagandists and radical advocates, both in and outside the Catholic Church, were pressing for an independent nation, separate from Spain. It was an extraordinary time, and this volume makes available to readers selected works by scholars from different parts of the world, using varied historical sources, bringing in new perspectives on the war. Topics in this volume include the influx of refugees to Cavite, which affected the rivalry between Bonifacio and Aguinaldo the travails of the Franciscan friars the hopes and fears of a young Spanish soldier the restrained exasperation of an aide-de-camp to the German cruiser squadron and the circuitous "intra-Asian" trade. These and the other essays in this volume reassess questions on the Revolution and the period it covers gender, ethnicity, military, and corruption.]

 Cavite en Siglo 19 : Translation of selected 19th century documents / Michael C. Francisco
 Philippine : Cavite Historical Society, Inc.,2002
 xix, 242 p.; ill; 23 cm.
 971-91706-8-9
 $ 15.00

[This book gives readers a glimpse of the history and the bureaucracy of the Spanish government, in particular in the historic province of Cavite during the 19th century based on Spanish documents from the National Archives. The transcription of the Spanish handwritten documents, together with its English translation, provides us with easy accessibility of primary sources. May this book inspire and encourage readers to visit the National Archives and do research not only on the history of their towns, but also on the history of the Philippines in general during the Spanish Period.]

[Andres Bonifacio is remembered as the Father of the Katipunan, the secret society that ignited the Philippine Revolution against Sapin. As its supreme leader, Bonifacio lived in the eye of the revolutionary tempest that swept the land. His bitter rivalry with Emilio Aguinaldo, the general who turned Cavite into a rebel stronghold, left the brotherhood splintered and on the run.

Through exhaustive research Sylvia Mendez Ventura has pieced together the largely undocumented life of Bonifacio from his humble roots to his tragic execution at the hands of his own Katipunero brothers.]

[Documents about the early period of American rule in the Philippines contain many silences and gaps surrounding the question of Filipino women in American Colonial discourse. This is especially the case in those written documents that have been traditionally accepted as the sources of historical investigation by mainstream professional historians. Representation of Filipinas by American Colonizers from 1898 to 1910 renders invisible historical Filipinas of the past, re-presenting them in written and visual texts as white Americans perceived them. These colonial histories write more about the colonizers than the people they colonized. Concentrating on the margins of the Philippine colonial society and particular historical knowledge about the Philippines. Colonizing Filipinas is about those colonial processes that formed Filipinos and Philippine colonial society. It is about the debt that colonialism owes to Filipinas.]

[This is the definitive account of the American Occupation of Cebu Province. It brings together a large mass of original data not only on battles and skirmishes but also on such topics as the finances of the resistance, collaboration and factionalism among Cebuanos, brigandage, and the Background and motives of the Personalities involved in the events. It goes being a well-documented chronicle of the Filipino-

American War as it was fought in one province; it carries the reader forward, beyond the war itself, to a reflection on the making of local society.]

[A Passing Season is the Saga of Families during the time of the twin wars of 1896 and 1898, known in history as the Philippine Revolution and the Filipino – American War. It is the story of the Eduartes, the de Almogueiras, the Herreras, and their neighbor and occasional friends, the Ricaforts, trying to hold on to old and trusted rituals of daily life amidst the turbulence and upheaval in the last years of the nineteenth century in Manila.

Most of all, A Passing Season is a novel about ordinary People – of Tibor and Aurora, Masin and his cousin Subas, of Torcuato, the Servant boy who knows no other existence, but who, in the end, establishes a kinship with the epical heroes of the nation because his sacrifice has not been less noble.]

[Qudarat, Lord of the Pulangi is historical fiction of the highest order. In straightforward, Lucid Prose, it recounts the life and times of Sultan Kudarat, the 17th century Muslim leader of Mindanao who defied the might of the Spaniards to forge a Muslim leader of Minanao who defied the might of the Spaniards to forge a Muslim nation in the south. Told from the point of view of a Tagalog slave with Christian roots, the novel powerfully trains the spotlight on the historic roots of the Christian-Muslim Problems in Mindanao. It provides details of the southern advance of the Spaniards propelled by the Zeal of Catholic missionaries and the minutiae of the struggles of the Muslim communities to preserve their way of life animated by the tenets of Allah. The result is a remarkable tapestry of the clash of civilizations that continues up to now.]

[The essays and various pieces in this volume reflect the contradictions, the tensions and the various "loose ends" which characterized the death throes of the Suharto era. Although they have been overtaken by several momentous events which have transpired since them, they can be of use to the reader who wished to catch a whiff of the zeitgeist of the late 1990s. In general the authors hew to an antiauthoritarian and antifundamentalist norm, while remaining alert to the grand designs of western governments and financial institutions. Indeed it is nearly impossible for the scholar, of whatever nationality, to pretend to be completely above the Indonesian fray. There is thus no attempt to present the contents of this collection as a mere chronicle of events.]

[Grass Roots and Cadre investigates the processes of recruitment, protest, debate, and contestation in a Philippine social movement between 1986 and 1988. By close comparison and narrative construction, the author presents a story of how three grass-roots collectives – UMALUN, DIWA, and KASAMA – were recruited by BISIG, a political movement, and how those unities fared amidst changing political and social conditions. The story, spun by the author from his analytical interpretation of numerous interviews and first-hand observations in the field, provides the basis for broader speculation on the social dynamics of protest in the Philippines.]

In the Philippines, a large number of popular images or icons crop up when the word "Filipino" is mentioned. The cultural icons that have shaped him in the past may not necessarily be the only determining factors since the Filipino has this innate tendency to innovate or to modify not merely on whims but more importantly to blend, to harmonize, to be one with his fellow Filipinos. For purposes of practical classification, the book is divided into several categories a] material objects from nature b] food and beverage / drinks c] tourists destinations d]cultural practices or traditions and e] personalities from heroes to cultural divas to sports and pop icons.

The last chapter features prominent Filipinos who express their own choices of cultural icons and why. Among these include Jaime Cardinal Sin, Cabinet secretaries, respected professionals, topnotch business executives, women entrepreneurs, artists and cultural workers.]
