ix. 172p. ; 23cm.
ISBN-13: 9789810892838
$ 19.95 / PB
336 gm.

This is a mix of an autobiography and notes on the social and political situations that the author has experienced as a child, an adult and as an old man at different times in three countries. Born in Malaya, he was primarily educated in the Chinese medium when the country was under the British colonial government and had to face inequitable disadvantages in accessing tertiary education. While away in the U.S. for his studies, he lost his birthright citizenship by a dubious law introduced when Malaya attained independence. He had to regain his citizenship by a tedious process in the country of his birth.

With 64 true stories from 1920 to the present day, our writers are from a wide range of backgrounds and ethnicities, making this a very unusual book. Here you can discover how a couple of sticks or a discarded cardboard box would become the nucleus of a competitive team sport, how entertainment changed and wearing shoes was unusual.

In this collection of Orang Asli animal tales you will learn, for example, how the once-cruel tapir got its white band and become the timid animal that is today. And why the flying lemur always hides his tail and flies only by night. Or how friends of the slow-loris protected him from the punishment of blinders ordered by the king for outraging the modesty of his daughter.

The story trails the dark history of the Malay Peninsula involving, politically influential, Malay secret societies during this period. Indera Sakti was formed in the sixteenth century, after the defeat of the Malaccan army by the Portuguese, by soldiers who vowed to take back the entire peninsula, but currently consists of "sadistic reptiles who are assassins, pirates and other undesirables." Darul Kubra, the another society, was formed to protect the treasures of Malik Al-Mansur, the ruler of Beruas who abandoned the city and fled from the advancing Portuguese.

The Sentimentality of the Valley of Tea is a collection of tales depicting the lifestyles of the Malaysian community set in the ex-British hill station of Cameron Highlands and the Lowlands.

The cultural potpourri in the tales comprises a blend of characters, with roots belonging to major Asian ancient civilizations; the South Indians and Chinese cultures are fused with the local Malay community. This cultural fusion is further blended with the "cultured" ways of the colonial British masters and overlords.

Intimating the Sacred : Religion in English Language Malaysian Fiction / Andrew Hock Soon Ng

Aberdeen, Hong Kong: Hong Kong University Press, 2011

ix. 281p. ; 23cm.

ISBN-13: 9789888083213

$ 25.00 / PB

434 gm.

Religion has featured in Anglophone literature in Malaysia from colonial times to the present. In Intimating the Sacred, Andrew Hock Soon Ng considers the practice of everyday religiosity as represented in literature, which is often starkly opposed to the impression created by religious rhetoric promoted by the government. The book's examination of intersections between (post)modernity and religion highlights links between religion and other facets of colonial and postcolonial identity such as class, gender and sexuality. It will appeal not only to scholars and specialists, but also to anyone who enjoys modern Southeast Asian literature.

This bilingual book features eyewitness accounts from Malaysians who were there, selected from Malaysiakini, LoyarBurok, Facebook, blogs and Twitter.

The writers were patriotic enough to brave severe warnings and a heavy clampdown by a government that did not seem to want to hear them – Malaysians who answered the call of duty to our future generations, and risked their comfort and well being so that they could tell their children and grandchildren: when it mattered the most, we stood up and were counted.

In their stories, we see Malaysians transcend politics to unite for a cause that is right of every single Malaysian, regardless of their ideology or background – a right to clean and fair elections.

This collection of over 40 essays spanning a decade between 2001 and 2011 provides a unique window into not only Nik Nazmi's coming of age, but also of Malaysia's Reformasi movement as it was transformed from a protest movement to a government-in-waiting and guardians of the vision for a more inclusive Bangsa Malaysia. Despite the momentous events of the years chronicled in these pages, the author's call for justice and freedom remains a constant.

Patriots & Pretenders is the peoples' history of the Malayan Independence struggle, which challenges the 'official' version of how 'Merdeka' was won. While this country remains stuck in a racist rut after 54 years of Independence, Patriots & Pretenders calls on Malaysians to break through to a people-centred non-racial agenda for change. From the lessons of the past, Kua outlines some pointers to the future which could form the Malaysian peoples' demands for the next generations.
