Globalisation and technological progress have ushered us into a new era of development. Never before has the promise of the 'Good Life' in a hedonistic, consumerist utopia, been within reach for so many. Yet a significant portion of humanity is still unable to meet their basic needs. These trends are unsustainable, and beg the question: Where are we heading as a global community... and at what cost?

In 2005, M. Nadarajah embarked on a journey into the heart of Asia to research culturally imbedded notions of sustainable development. He met with the indigenous communities of the Henanga, Ainu, Lanna, Karen, Kankanaey, Balinese and several others. These cultures reside far from the problems of mainstream development, both physically and spiritually. Their lifestyles incorporate philosophies of interconnectedness; of the sacredness of nature; of the continuity of Past, Present and Future. Rather than offer notions of sustainable development, these life-affirming philosophies pave a pathway towards a deep sustainability.

On this path, we find answers to how we must change as a society in order for us to preserve our world for all future generations. But do we have the collective will to overcome our consumptive habits and start living responsibly? Living Pathways offers its readers a chance to meditate upon these questions. It provides meaningful directions towards the spiritual paths of sustainable communities we often take for granted. Above all, it shows the reader a picture of the world we live in as it could be, if only we choose to make it so.

This is a story about Itin, an eight-year-old Bornean elephant who lives in Sabah, Malaysian Borneo. In his journey of discovery, Itin learns from his mother and relatives about folklore that tells how elephants are revered by indigenous communities, and what he should expect once he leaves the herd. Written largely in Itin and his relatives' voices, this book also covers facts on elephants including unique features, social behaviour and communication methods. This publication highlights threats that Bornean elephants face daily, such as when their migratory paths are blocked by changes in land use or other forms of development. It also describes some of the scientific and field work that is done to protect elephant habitats, and their long-term survival in a fragmented landscape. Peppered with colour pictures, Itin — A Bornean Elephant, will hopefully inspire readers to better understand the plight of this endangered mammal, and what its future holds against a backdrop of increasing demands for a comfortable lifestyle.

ACROSS ASIA, people are coming to terms with the impacts of globalization and its accompanying social, economic, and environmental transformations. This compelling study examines biocultural diversity – the ways different communities interact with their surroundings, drawing upon local knowledge, shared values, and cultural heritage as they negotiate change. In an ambitious and pathbreaking regional research project, some of Asia’s leading public intellectuals visited five communities – Kali Code (Indonesia), Tasik Chini (Malaysia), Biwako (Japan), Batanes (The Philippines) and Khiriwong (Thailand) – in order to better understand local responses to contemporary challenges. Through analytical essays, personal reflections, poetry, music and dance – and beautifully illustrated throughout by powerful images – Living Landscapes, Connected Communities encourages us to broaden our understandings of people’s changing relationship with nature to encompass essential elements of spirituality, identity, belonging, and wellbeing. With all their complexity and creativity, each of these communities has something meaningful to convey about the human-environment connection and the common threads linking people across the region. Taken together, these stories of resilience, perseverance, and collective action provides a timely and relevant counterpoint to fatalistic views of environmental degradation. Living Landscapes, Connected Communities will appeal to a broad audience – to everyone interested in the dynamic relations between society, culture, environment, and change in modern Asia.

History

The History of Logging in North Borneo /Ross Ibbotson
Kota Kinabalu, Malaysia : Opus Publications, 2014
97898339875
$ 137.50 / HB

This book gives a very comprehensive account of the history of logging in the Malaysian state of Sabah (earlier known as North Borneo), covering every aspect of the industry from its very beginnings in the late 19th century until the present day. The trade in secondary forest products; aromatica, gums, rattan and beeswax which were collected by natives from locations deep in the forest and transported to Europe and China, some as early as the first millennia, is also discussed.

Every facet in the development of logging from the early days, when manpower was used to sophisticated mechanized operations culminating in the helicopter logging of recent years, is described in detail and illustrated with more than 400 photographs, many of them very rare. Early steam-driven machinery, the arrival of the chainsaw, the introduction of tractors and modern logging trucks—all are covered. Not forgotten are the difficulties—such as the major destruction of infrastructure during World War II—and failures—such as the experiment with elephants.

The various means of transporting logs from forest to port—hand-hauling, rail, road, water—are described in detail, as are the dramatic changes in shipping—from the hazardous days of sailing ships which could take weeks to load taking logs mostly to Australia and China to the specialised log-carriers of the 20th century heading to Japan, Korea and China.

Personalities, both local and foreign, involved in the logging industry are also given prominence, with one chapter devoted to the typical life of a pre-war logger.

The role played by Indian Muslims in the history of the Malay Archipelago in general and early Malaya and then Malaysia in particular has been recognized by various scholars as largely unrecorded. This pioneering work by well-known Malaysian political scientist and historian Professor Farish A. Noor, will help to close this historical gap. As economic, cultural as well as religious activities of Indian Muslims in the region are covered, this well-researched book, drawing on sources from archives in the wider region, is an introduction to this topic and may also serve as an impetus for others to research these areas in greater detail.

The law of personal data protection deals with the various issues that arise in the process of protecting the rights of persons in possession of personal data. In the public mind there is often confusion between privacy and personal data. It will be seen from the Personal Data Protection Act 2010 that they are separate issues in the eyes of the law. This book sets out the international personal data protection principles as incorporated by the Malaysian government in the Personal Data Protection Act 2010, and introduces a highly innovative and distinctive approach, namely the "Compliance Approach Methodology" for application at both professional and management levels.

In celebrating the 50th anniversary of the formation of Malaysia, this book provides a timely and useful study of the constitutional rights of Sabah and Sarawak. It traces the early European interest in South East Asia, the influence of the Sulu and Brunei Sultanates over the Borneo Island and the various treaties between the Sulu or Brunei Sultanates and individual English traders or bounty seekers conferring interest or title to the vast territorial areas in Borneo, as well as the influence of the North Borneo Trading Company up to the time North Borneo and Sarawak became Crown Colonies and the genesis of Malaysia.

This book focuses on the various constitutional documents of Sabah and Sarawak, such as the recommendations of the Cobbold Commission on the formation of Malaysia; the Twenty-Point Memorandum of the Sabah Alliance Parties to the Inter-Governmental Committee (IGC); the corresponding recommendations of the IGC on the constitutional framework for the new nation; as well as the Malaysia Act 1963 to which the Federal Constitution of Malaysia was annexed as a series of amendments to the Federation of Malaya Constitution. The subsequent constitutional amendments upon the exit of Singapore are specifically highlighted and the effect of those amendments on the constitutional protection and safeguards guaranteed to Sabah and Sarawak are dealt with. Further, the key provisions in the State Constitutions, including the Financial Provisions, the Federal-State relationship and the Public Service are analysed and discussed.

Topics of great general interest are covered, including the validity of the Philippine claim over Sabah from the perspective of international law; the theoretical basis for the applicability of the doctrine of basic structure to Sabah and Sarawak; the constitutional status of the Cobbold Commission recommendations, the IGC recommendations and the Twenty-Point Memorandum; and the constitutionality of the Petroleum Development Act 1974.

Borneo Law Reports - Full Sets Volumes 1 - 7 / Editor TAN Kee Heng
2013 Edition
Malaysia : Sweet & Maxwell, 2013
9789675040740 (Set)
$ 1023.00 (Set) / HB

The proper conduct of cases through the court system requires the support of good sets of law reports and journals. The law reports are the repository of the body of case law that forms a significant and important part of the law that is applied by the courts to resolve issues and determine rights, particularly in the common law world where the doctrine of judicial precedent plays a crucial role in the administration of justice through the courts of law.

The Borneo Law Reports covers all major areas of law with reference to the most recent developments in each of the areas reported. This work contains more than 500 full judgments (divided into seven volumes based on subject matter headings) decided by the High Court, Court of Appeal and the Federal Court that represent all the important cases originating from the High Court in Sabah and Sarawak from 1993 to 2013, many of which are hitherto unreported in any of the law reports in Malaysia.

While the Borneo Law Reports contains cases from several areas of law that are peculiar to Sabah and Sarawak, and provides a very valuable collection of such cases for future reference, the publication also contains much case law on subjects that are applicable throughout Malaysia, including administrative law, banking law, bankruptcy, civil procedure, company law, constitutional law, contract, criminal law, criminal procedure, evidence, family law, revenue law and tort.

The Borneo Law Reports comes in handsome bound volumes with cases organised according to subject matter headings arranged alphabetically. Each case is supported by concise and well-structured catchwords as well as a succinct headnote with holdings referenced to the relevant parts of the case.

$ 89.00/ HB

The media and entertainment landscape is changing against the backdrop of technology and service convergence. Media-driven convergence in the realms of film, TV, radio, theatre, print media and social networking have created new business opportunities and are reshaping the commercial landscape and consumer markets. Media and Entertainment: A Practical Legal, Business & Strategy Guide provides a succinct and practical guide to managing legal and business issues in the media-based creative and entertainment business. Written in clear style, this book provides the tools for content creators, producers, media companies and distributors to manage legal and business risks and create commercial value. It provides an easy-to-use reference to guide the thinking and planning of strategies and creative content program management through checklists, planning templates and sample documents. This book targets both enterprises (media companies, production houses and distributors) and individual producers and content creators and seeks to guide the readers with practical legal tools to manage creative works in a real world environment. Written in plain English and using examples of the legal, policy and business framework in Malaysia and Singapore, this practical book covers law, business and strategy design and planning process from the conception of creative ideas, production and all the way to final distribution. The book covers the following four key issues in the media and entertainment value chain:

- Understanding media rights in the creative and entertainment business

- Managing brands and intellectual property rights (especially copyright and trade mark)
- Managing legal risks in music, broadcasting, independent TV production (including celebrity and image rights) both online and in the physical world
- Managing legal and business issues in financing media and broadcasting projects

Islamic Business: Contemporary Issues and Economic Development
Malaysia : LexisNexis, 2013
9789674002312
$ 60.00 / PB

The effects of the 2008 Global Financial Crisis amongst others have led to the review of prevailing banking and financial practices. Over the past four years, many discussions were held to discover potential remedies and safeguards including the viability of alternative approaches and systems. The Islamic banking industry can certainly capitalise on the collapse of conventional asset prices and have many customers of the conventional system moving towards alternative financial systems.

Once confined to OIC member states, Islamic finance is now widely practiced in 75 countries worldwide. It's growing popularity among OIC as well as non-OIC economies is reflected in a growth rate at least double and up to four times (according to different estimates) that of conventional banking and finance.

Islamic Business: Contemporary Issues and Economic Development explore the loopholes in the current global financial and economic system. This book highlights the advantages of the Islamic system in averting disasters and the feasibility of adopting alternative exchange rate arrangements to promote greater trade integration and macroeconomic performance.

Compendium of Malaysian Intellectual Property Cases - Trade Marks
Volume 1 / Foong Cheng Leong
Malaysia : LexisNexis Malaysia, 2013
9789674002107
$ 75.00 / PB

This book contains more than seventy (70) reported and unreported cases on Trade Marks from the Malaysian High Court, Court of Appeal and Federal Court. For ease of reference the cases have been divided into sections such as infringement, passing off, rectification and opposition. The cases also cover other issues such as non-compliance of pre-trial case management, stay of proceedings, defamation, striking out and assessment of damages in these intellectual property cases. Many of these judgments are not published by the local law journals and they contain many important points of laws.

This is the first publication of a series of books containing reported and unreported Malaysian intellectual property cases.

- This title acts as a handy and mobile casebook
 - Catchphrases are comprehensive and helpful in focusing the readers on the specific issue of Trade Marks
 - This title is an indispensable tool for lawyers, in-house counsels, patent attorneys, intellectual property practitioners and students.

Adjudication of Construction Payment Disputes in Malaysia
/ Chow Kok Fong, Lim Chong Fong, Oon Chee Kheng
Malaysia : Lexis Nexis Malaysia, 2013
9789674002091
$ 135.00 / HB

This book by three prominent construction contracts specialists provide potential adjudicators and parties in adjudication with a primer to navigate through the various provisions of the Construction Industry Payments and Adjudication Act ('the Act'). The first part of the book sets out a commentary of the Act and includes pointers on how the practical dimensions of the subject may develop within the context of Malaysia. The second part of the book contains two adjudication decisions and forms which may serve as templates for the various processes of the Act.

Being a new piece of legislation, the Annotations included in this title will be very useful to the construction industry, especially building and construction professionals and government departments with little to no experience with the workings of the CIPA Act.

Includes section-by-section guide to the CIPA Act and samples of adjudication awards.

Choong on Real Property Gains Tax: Law & Practice/ Choong Kwai Fatt

Malaysia : Lexis Nexis Malaysia, 2014

9789674002299

Real property gains tax is charged on gains arising from the disposal of real property; and on disposal of shares in a real property company.

The reinstatement of tax on gains arising from disposal of real property during the Tabling of the 2010 amendments surprised many. Choong on Real Property Gains Tax: Law & Practice provides a detailed analysis of the workings of real property gains tax. The relevant legislation and technical aspects are discussed extensively with reference to case precedents and the use of numerous practical worked examples. Tax planning suggestions are incorporated to allow the reader to optimise the research presented in this book. The topics covered are:

- Individuals
- Companies
- Partnership
- Deceased person
- Trustee and nominees
- Leases
- Options
- Islamic transactions

- Tax administration
- Offence and appeals
- Penalties
- Tax recoveries
- Refund
- Ministerial exemption

Leading RPGT cases are incorporated and these provide illustrations of the implementation of the law and provides completeness.

This reference book is a must in the library of tax practitioners, lawyers, corporate managers, accountants or indeed for anybody involved in real property transactions.

The law is stated as at 28 February 2014.

Understanding Personal Data Protection Law / Noriswadi Ismail
Malaysia : Lexis Nexis Malaysia, 2013
9789674001445
$ 75.00 / PB

This book is the first of its kind in Malaysia and Southeast Asia. It provides general guidance to individual and organisations on the processes of how to manage, collect and use personal data. It offers practical tips on topical data protection scenarios from the context of the Malaysian Personal Data Protection Act 2010 (Act 709). The tone, manner, look and feel of this book are straightforward, succinct yet presented in simple language for the ease of understanding. It highlights Privacy by Design (PbD), a best practice module by which the seven foundational principles of personal data protection are advanced towards organisational data protection compliance and assurance. This book guides the reader, through case studies and tips on how these principles and the law of personal data protection should be contextually applied in day to day life; flowing from the consumer's role in relation to personal data right through to steps to be taken in case of a breach. An interesting chapter on PDPA post enforcement, Top Ten Hitlist and the reflection of Malaysian data protection and privacy law evolution is carefully covered. To cater to a broader readership, this book adopts illustrations, diagrams, tables and frequently asked questions aimed to simplify the basic principles and concepts of data protection. It is a book for all and sundry.
