SHAN TEXTILES / Susan Conway
Bangkok : River Books, 2003
256 pages, 250 x 220 mm
Hardback
Over 300 colour illus.
ISBN 974 8225 92 5
$ 45.00

The culture of the Shan peoples of Burma and their rulers is extensively explored in this volume. Shan courts flourished the late British colonial period, and in this book rare early photographs, never before published, document life in the courts and in the hill regions of Shan dominion.

As in her previous book Silken Threads Lacquer Thrones Ð Lan Na Court Textiles which was acclaimed for its groundbreaking discoveries of the culture of the Lan Na kingdom, Susan Conway focuses again on dress and the use of textiles in the Shan states, as well as on historical chronicles, to define a fascinating people of old Burma. Lavish illustrations bring to life a rich cultural tradition of mainland Southeast Asia.

THE TERRACE BUILDERS : Yunnan's Stairways to the Sky / Jim Goodman

204 pages, 253 x 182 mm

250 full colour illus. with plans

ISBN 974 8225 74 7

Paperback

$ 40.00

This is the first multi-discipline study of the Bayon temple involving the architectural history, the art history, iconography and epigraphy of the Bayon within the historic and religious framework of the period of Jayavarman VII. The key element of the architecture is thoroughly explored to define the various phases of constructions, modification and addition. All the inscriptions are translated and re-interpreted; all narrative reliefs are decoded and explained. The way the Chams perceived the Khmers of that period is explored through Cham inscriptions. The resulting data of the various disciplines is integrated into a new updated vision of the art, religion and social structure Cambodia under the rule of Jayavarman VII.

The contributors include Olivier Cunin, Claude Jacques, T. Max Maxwell, Vittorio Roveda, Anne Valerie Schwayer and William Southworth. Co-editors are Joyce Clark and Vittorio Roveda.

IMAGES OF THE GODS / Vittorio Roveda

Bangkok : River Books, 2004

250 pages, 280 x 220 mm

Hardback

With 800 colour illus.

ISBN 974 8225 96 8
$ 40.00

The myths and legends of the Khmers displayed in low reliefs in their temples in Cambodia, Thailand and Laos are examined in depth and richly illustrated. The most surprising and intimate stories of the gods and human figures of the great epics of the Mahabharata, Ramayana and the Puranas are brought to life in much more detail than in the previous work on Khmer Mythology. A new emphasis is given to Buddhist visual narrative on the life of the Buddha and on the Jatakas. In addition, the lives of unusual animal and humanoid creatures at the edges between myth and fantasy, is explored and amply illustrated.

The book also examines the spreading of Khmer visual narrative in Thailand and Laos, from the VII to the XIV centuries.

THAI FURNITURE / Chulathat Payakalanond

Bangkok : River Books, 2003

280 pages, 325 x 265 mm

Hardback

Over 300 full colour illus.

ISBN 974 8225 45 3

$ 50.00

Although traditional Thai houses were not over-endowed with elaborate furniture, over the centuries an important and individualistic tradition has developed, and today antique Thai furniture is highly collectable. Thai Furniture discusses the evolution of religious furniture such as the elaborate gilded lacquerware cupboards for storing manuscripts and monks' prayer seats used during the Ayutthaya period, the carved and gilded court furniture of the Rattanakosin period and simpler everyday items such as chests, tables and beds found in many private homes.

THAI BUDDHIST PAINTING / Henry Ginsburg & Prathum Chumpengbhandhu

This volume will survey the rich heritage of Thai Buddhist paintings on cloth and on wood and will be lavishly illustrated. It will draw on the two finest surviving collections of these traditional Thai paintings. The first collection is that of the Thai Fine Arts Department, preserved in the Thai national museums and the National Gallery, and the second is the collection formed in the 1960s by the American heiress Doris Duke. The extensive Duke collection was assembled after Miss Duke visited Thailand and decided to build a world-class collection of Thai art. The finest of her Thai paintings have been divided between two major American museums, the Asian Art Museum of San Francisco, and the Walters Art Museum in Baltimore.

The fragility of Thai Buddhist paintings on cloth and wood has meant that very few examples survive from before the early nineteenth century, but their history can be sketched from some of these rare survivals. From the middle Bangkok period (1820-1920) the rich holdings of some two hundred examples from the two collections will be extensively reproduced and studied in this volume. The joint authors are Prathum Chumpengbhandhu, formerly curator of the Fine Arts Department in Bangkok and Dr. Henry Ginsburg, curator of Thai manuscripts and books at The British Library in London. Dr. Ginsburg's previous two volumes have explored some fine surviving examples of Thai painting in old manuscripts

THE PRE-TAI ART OF THAILAND / Betty Gosling

Bangkok : River Books, 2003

Hardback

With 250 colour illustrations

ISBN 974 8225 99 2

$ 40.00

During the past few decades of the twentieth century archaeological, historical, epigraphic, linguistic, and art historical research opened windows on Thailand's ancient pre-Tai era (third millennium BC to thirteenth century AD) that previously had been closed. These extraordinary glimpses into Thailand's once hidden past have remained somewhat independent one from the other, however, and provide only a partial picture of the three and half millennia that led towards the formation of the modern Thai nation.

Since written sources that shed light on Thailand's earliest years are few and far between, art objects are an important means of illuminating not only the country's artistic traditions but also the religious, political, and ethnic milieu in which Thai art took root and flourished. This richly illustrated, very readable book presents a survey of early Thai art within the context of recent art historical and related research. The myriad pieces of the complex cross-cultural jigsaw puzzle are fitted together, and where gaps remain, the isolated dots are connected to draw a coherent picture of Thai protohistory and its art. The manner in which the ancient past evolved into Thailand's historical period emerges.

LANNA LACQUERWARE / Vithi Panichphant

Lacquerware originated in China over 3,000 years and quickly spread to Korea, Japan, Burma and Thailand. It is not certain when it arrived in the kingdom of Lan Na, today's northern Thailand, but by the 16th century Burmese records were already commenting on the skill of Lan Na lacquer makers.

Following the attack on Chiang Mai by King Burengnong in 1557, the rulers of that principality sent tribute goods including lacquerware to Burma. Lacquer making reached its apogee during the reign of King Kawila of Chiang Mai when the king also brought expert craftsmen from Chiang Tung. Their skills were combined with local workshops to create new designs and regional differences developed in centres such as San Kampaeng, Phrae, Nan, Uttaradit and Lampang.

This book by an expert on Lan Na arts and crafts, unravels the complex strands underlying Lan Na lacquerware and enables the reader to compare and contrast these beautiful artefacts with better-known examples from Burma.

[This colourful and highly illustrated volume on Southeast Asian Textiles presents the works of scholars and art historians invited to participate in a unique symposium organized by the Bangkok-based James H.W. Thompson Foundation. The twelve experts from the U.S.A, France, Australia, Thailand and the UK who presented papers at the conference have provided a fascinating cross-section of articles on Southeast Asian textiles, their history and their uses.

Works by Mattiebelle Gittenger, John Guy, Susan Conway, and Gillian Green are included, and papers cover such diverse subjects as Shan court dress, the origins of Khmer textiles, and Cham weaving. The renowned authors have presented thought provoking texts covering the regions of present - day Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Myanmar, Thailand and Vietnam.]

[This comprehensive and attractive reference is divided into four parts : The historical and cultural background; and analysis of Northern Buddha images, including iconography, style, techniques, and dating; the types of Northern Buddha images; and associated Buddhist sculptures, such as footprints and mythical creatures. The Buddha images are classified by style and date, using those images with inscribed dates as the armature around which to cluster the undated statues. The images are analyzed in detail and placed in their historical, cultural, and religious context. Richly illustrated with photographs and line drawings, this volume is an indispensable reference and guide to Buddha images and other Buddhist sculpture of Northern Thailand.]

[The Master Index of Travel in Asia Pacific is a new predictive market intelligence tool tailored to the Strategic planning needs of the travel, tourism and hospitality industries. The Master Index of Travel is an Outbound travel forecast tool for the Asia Pacific region, providing six-month outbound forecasts for 12 key Asia Pacific markets: Australia, China, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Singapore, Chinese Taipei and Thailand. Produced twice a year in June and December, the Forecast provides powerful predictive market intelligence that is relevant to not only the travel and tourism sector, but also to related sectors such as retail, entertainment, food and beverage, hospitality, leisure and even manufacturing. Master Index of Travel Leverages the success of Mastercard International's consumer confidence Survey-the most comprehensive and long-running consumer sentiment survey in Asia Pacific. Since 1992, Mastercard International's Consumer Confidence Survey has consistently demonstrated its predictive precision. An excellent barometer of the consumer pulse in this region, the survey is sought-after by analysts academic and decision -makers in financial institutions, government agencies and multi-national organisations.]

Annual Statistical Report 2003
Bangkok : Pacific Asia Travel Association

$ 350.00

[This is the only publication that brings together in one volume the visitor arrivals data of Asia Pacific Countries, the outbound travel statistics of selected Asia Pacific countries and other tourism -related data, such as length of stay, visitors expenditure, hotel occupancy rates, national tourism organisation budgets and more. The 2003 PATA Annual Statistical Report is an invaluable tool for planning marketing strategies and conducting competitive analyses. The major components of the report are:

Growth trends
Arrivals by residence / Nationality and gender
Arrivals by purpose of visit and mode of transport
Origin of Asia Pacific arrivals by country / region

Outbound travel of residents / nationals of Asia Pacific countries
Useful miscellaneous data

The 40th report in this series, the 2003 Annual Statistical report provides Strategists, analysts and marketers with a factual and detailed account of international visitor flows to and within the Asia Pacific region. In addition to providing arrivals data to more than 40 destinations within the Asia Pacific region, the 2003 ASR also details travel activity by individual source countries, thereby providing users with a clear picture of areas of growth, stagnation and decline, based on immediate past figures. In addition, and where available, the report lists a number of supplementary statistics including accommodation developments, air capacity changes and NTO budget allocations. The 2003 ASR is a definite 'must' for anybody interested in better understanding travel and tourism dynamics in the Asia Pacific region.]

Witt, covers predicted travel flows to and within the region for the years 2004, 2005 and 2006. With over 300 tables and charts, this report provides a detailed coverage of overall travel trends to 40 destinations within the region and applies a rigorous econometric model to produce best estimates for travel demand in the short-to medium -term. Also included in the report are estimated for revenues from tourism, departures from key regional source markets and where data is available, for future accommodation stock requirements. Taken collectively these forecasts provide a timely and authoritative perspective on the immediate possibilities for tourism within the wider Pacific Asia region, and allow marketers and planners to make informed judgments about resource allocations for optimal returns.]

Russia : Outbound Report
Bangkok : Pacific Asia Travel Association, 2004
1-932171-19-3
$ 350.00

[Russia-a country of more than 144.5 million residents and covering a geographical area in excess of 17 million square kilometers is for many of us an enigmatic and largely unknown tourism source market. Since the relaxation of travel regulation for resident Russian nationals in the late '90s, however , outbound travel volumes have been steadily increasing to more and more destinations around the world. By the end of 2001 outbound numbers had risen to almost 3.8 million trips. Asia Pacific destinations received reasonable volumes over the last few years and by 2002, had hosted around 2 million travellers from Russia. More significant, however, was the finding that the numbers to Asia Pacific destinations had increased by almost 50% between 1998 and 2002. Russia is a market worth considering, especially as airline capacity beings to increase and alternative access routes become easier and more plentiful. This Outbound Market report-the latest from PATA –is a joint venture between the government of Korea and the Strategic intelligence Center and will be available later this year. Following the format of previous outbound studies, this report looks at the social dynamics in today’s Russia and how they will impact on future outbound travel flows. A Practical manual. It focuses on those elements that need to be factored into any strategic and marketing plan that looks to Russia as an emerging market source of significance to relevant destinations. Look for in the last quarter of 2004.]

Korea (ROK) Outbound Report
Bangkok : Pacific Asia Travel Association, 2004
1-932171-20-7
$ 200.00

[Resident nationals of Korea have shown a remarkable liking for international travel over the past few years, so much so, that they now represent a sizeable market and one being targeted by many destinations across the globe. Since 1987, the Korean outbound market has shown a year-on-year double digit growth with the only exception during the financial crisis in 1997and 1998. Immediately after the crisis, overseas travel increased by approximately one million departures every year, from 3.07 million in 1998 to 4.34 million in 1999, 5.51 million in 2000, 6.08 million in 2001 and 7.12 million in 2002. Korea is a solid yield market as well, with estimates of average spend-per-trip running at more than US$1,400. Asia Pacific destinations are the major beneficiaries of this boom, capturing the majority of these travellers even as they are en-route to longer-haul destinations. Significant opportunities still remain, however, as Korean travellers begin to explore more fully the diverse cultures and experiences on their doorstep in the Asia Pacific region. This report from PATA has been produced in conjunction with the Korea National Tourism Organization and the Government of the Republic of Korea, and provides a comprehensive overview of the development of outbound travel, destinations visited and a snapshot of what can be expected into the near future. Designed as a practical manual, the report also describes the Characteristics of travelling Koreans as well as listing the important business-to-business elements necessary to succeed in this market. A Must –read report for anyone contemplating entering or improving their position in the Korean market.]

[The Democratic People's Republic of Korea is a nation covered almost on a daily basis by the world's media. In spite of this, it remains one of Asia's best-kept secrets. Traditional Korean architecture shares the same landscape with powerful monuments in a country in a country that boasts a wealth of historical, cultural, natural and man-made attractions. The PATA Task Force to DPR Korea aimed to gain an overall understanding of the country's tourism product and potential, and paid particular attention to the following:

- Marketing and promotion of DPR Korea as a destination and destination branding
- Air access and the modernization of flag carrier –Air Koryo
- Ground operations and infrastructure

In 1996, eighteen exquisite hand-drawn and hand-coloured cotton maps were discovered in the Grand Palace, Bangkok. These long-lost treasures record cartographically Siamese warfare and trade during the first three reigns of the Bangkok Period (1782-1851). Works of art in themselves, the maps are also full of historical and landscape detail so that they will become important primary sources for historians and geographers of Southeast Asia for years to come. Now preserved and safely stored in the Library of HRH Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn, it is the purpose of this beautifully illustrated book to introduce these exciting discoveries to the general public and to scholars, antiquarians and cartographic historians. Royal Siamese Maps is thus a lively account of the finding, the dating, the cartographic characteristics, and historical significance of these rare remnants of the Siamese heritage.

In the 13th century there arose in the Yom valley the twin cities of Sukhothai and Si Satchanalai. Over the next 130 years their kings created some of the most beautiful temples and sculpture to grace mainland Southeast Asia. Later an important muang (or principality) developed at Kamphaeng Phet where the architecture reveals a fusion of Sukhothai and Ayutthaya styles. This informative guide provides entries to over 80 sites in these three cities, including information on architectural styles, history, building techniques, and travel tips.

Pagan was the largest and most resplendent center of Buddhist worship in the ancient world, boasting thousands of temples along the Irrawaddy River. Local architects mastered complex brick vaulting to fashion enormous shrines unrivalled in Asia. Brilliant frescos featuring Buddhist themes still survive. Pagan flourished between the eleventh and thirteenth centuries when artisans and monks from India, Tibet and Sri Lanka all combined to foster a unique indigenous cultural expression. For many years Myanmar (former Burma) was terra incognita in Southeast Asia but the recent lifting of travel restrictions has made this temple city now accessible.

[Dip into Thailand's Rivers and you delve into the very core of Thai beliefs. No river better illustrates that than Thailand's lifeline, the Chao Phya. Dependable provider of the staple foods of rice and fish, the medium for its main festivals, the element of its royal and lay rites of passage, and the vibrant heart of its belief system, culture, and literature, its importance is paramount. Trace the Chao Phya and its tributaries and you trace a millennium of Thailand's history and economic development. Understand the meaning of water in Thai culture and you understand Thais and Thailand. By the time you finish this eye opening book, you will know Thailand in a manner seldom revealed, a journey in words and pictures as pleasurable as it is rewarding.]

[The Pagoda War records the British attack on Upper Burma. In November 1885 10,000 British and Indian troops were transported in steamers of the Flotilla Company. After a few skirmishes they occupied Mandalay and deposed King Thibaw and Queen Supayalat, who were sent into exile in India – Upper Burma was then annexed to the British Empire. Why did so successful a campaign arouse such bitter controversy at the time, and why did it bring only discredit on the soldiers who carried it out? Strangely enough, some of the answers to these questions are to be found in Ireland. For the leading figures in these Burmese drama were almost all Irishmen, from the Viceroy of India, Lord Dufferin, to the special correspondent of The Times. Edward Moylan, who pursued a personal vendetta against the British administration in Burma.]

Democracy, Shaken and Stirred : A Novel / Win Lyovarin ;Translated by Prisna Boonsinsukh
Bangkok. : Prisna Boonsinsukh, c2003
319 p.; 21cm

$ 11.75

[Democracy in Thailand was born in Paris, a lofty ideal hatched by a handful of intellectuals. When the People's Party propelled Thailand into a democracy in 1932, most Thai people were not ready for it. They saw it only as a power game that diminished their most revered king and gave carte blanche to bottomless corruption by people in power. The next sixty years saw Thailand going through more than fifteen changes of government, at least tens of them by force. The usually bloodless coups turned bloodbath the last couple of times, with atrocities that made world's headlines.

In the wilderness at the border between Thailand and Laos, two men met and fought a duel as deadly enemies. They both lived to become grudging friends, all the time walking the parallel lines of democracy : one sworn to topple and uproot corrupted governments, the other, while equally disgusted with the abusing of power, was duty bound to uphold their lawful authorities.

They combined experiences gave us tantalizing behind – the – scene glimpses into all the major rebellions and coups between 1933 and 1992. Win Lyovarin weaved fictional and real characters, fictitious and documented events into a colourful fabric of an historical novel of extraordinary power and perception.]

[This book chronicles the development of a nationalist protest movement, analyzing its origins, strategies, and goals within the context of a growing democratic and civil society. Using an anthropological approach, Bruce Missingham bases his research on ethnographic fieldwork among the men and women who participate in the Assembly, including a broad spectrum of villagers, village leaders, and NGO activists. He explores the processes underlying mass mobilization and the social construction of protest, discusses the contradictions and conflicts that have arisen, and considers the degree of participation and democracy within the grassroots movement. Finally, he describes the Assembly's campaigns and changing fortunes following the Thai economic crisis in mid - 1997 and looks at the result of its sustained protest activities.]

[The Disorder in Order : the Army-State in Burma since 1962 examines Burma's history of "regime entropy" following the March 1962 coup d'état which ended the country's brief experiment with parliamentary government. Implementing socialist economic policies in Central Burma and a hard line against ethnic and communist insurgents in the Border Areas. Ne Win's Army-State presided over the country's fall from prosperity to Least Developed Nation status by 1987. The following year, a martial law regime, the State Law and Order Restoration Council (SLORC), brutally suppressed a nationwide movement for democracy that drew on the Country's colonial-era traditions of revolutionary nationalism.]

[The Boys in Black : Thahan Phran (Rangers), Thailand's Para - military Border Guards, is a study of Rangers, a volunteer organization founded by the Royal Thai Army in 1978 to combat communist insurgency. They have since become responsible for the first-line defence of Thailand's border: fighting intruding armed forces, such as the ethnic insurgent armies and the drug trafficking groups in the Thai-Burma borderlands; guarding refugee camps; maintaining peace and security in troubled areas. They are widely known for their involvement in extraneous politically motivated and violent activities. This book is about life and security in Thailand's borderlands from a Ranger perspective. It is both a critique of an important element of Thailand's border defence regime and an introduction to the complex political geography and human security issues in the borderlands.]
