Practical Guide to the WTO for Human Rights Advocates
Bangkok : Asian Forum for Human Rights and Development (FORUM-ASIA), c2004
97 p. ; 29cm.
974-92658-1-5
$ 15.00

[The Practical Guide to the WTO is a simply-worded, concise and accurate guide to the World Trade Organization (WTO), its rules and its ways of working.

It provides concrete examples of how trade and trade rules developed in the WTO and elsewhere can affect human rights, as well as detailed reference and contact information for those wishing to learn more about how to undertake work relating to trade.

Importantly, the Practical Guide contains pointers for individuals and groups concerned with human rights to respond to the threats trade and trade rules can pose to the enjoyment of human rights. It describes human rights processes and mechanisms that are available to those wanting to ensure that trade, trade rules or the domestic implementation of international trade rules are carried out in a way that does not have negative impacts on human rights. In particular, it points out some simple actions available to human rights advocates concerned about trade liberalization.

Whilst the Guide is primarily designed for human rights advocates, it will also interest a broader audience such as journalists, parliamentarians, students and members of the general public who are interested in the impacts of economic and trade policy on human rights.]

[Tourism is today one of the largest industries in the world, and Southeast Asia is a favourite destination among tourists. Generating immense income and employment, tourism is economically beneficial, but can also leave a negative impact on the environment and culture of the host country.

The management, preservation and sustainability of cultural heritage and an ongoing discussion on their effectiveness in the Southeast Asian region are the particular focus of this publication. Case studies, and essays on heritage management and eco-tourism are presented in this volume, which includes information on the effects of tourism on Southeast Asian society and culture, and the measures and actions taken in response to this phenomenon.]

[For over four hundred years between 1350 and 1767 Ayutthaya was the capital of Siam, renowned throughout the world for its wealth and beautiful temples. During this period it became one of the most important trading cities in the region and a magnet for travelers, missionaries and adventurers. Crucial to its success was its location on the Chao Phraya river, which since time immemorial has irrigated the fertile Thai heartland, and been a vital strategic and communications link, as important to the Thais as the Nile is to the Egyptians.
In Ayutthaya – Venice of the East, Derick Garnier traces the interlinked histories of Ayutthaya and the Chao Phraya with a text which is scholarly and entertaining. In over 15 years of research, Derick Garnier has become an expert in this field and has amassed a wealth of fascinating material and anecdotes.]

[This is a study on Thai-English hybrid lexical formations, which focuses on loan-blends and hybrid native creations.

The objectives of the study are :

- a) to identify, classify and describe the dynamic lexical processes that are operative in Thai-English loan-blends and hybrid native creations that go beyond what is revealed by an examination of the grammatical structure of a lexical item
- b) to describe the phonological, morphological and lexico-semantic changes that accompany the formation of the new lexical item
- c) to describe how these innovations are integrated into the system.]

[Pali and Vernacular Literature Transmitted in Central and Northern Siam is a preliminary survey of the pre-modern literature of Central and northern Siam. Based on old records, it inventories both Pali and Vernacular literature, classed under twenty-seven categories, dealing with Buddhism, grammar, history, narrative, and folklore. It records the titles of texts inscribed on palm-leaf and paper and from journals in the early period of printing. It includes descriptions of the Complete contents of the pionerring translations published in the journals Dharmacaksu and Dharmasampati, which issued in new translation styles. The introduction discusses the sources of the book and the genres it describes. The book is accompanied by indexes of titles persons, and place-names.]

Footprints of the Buddhas of this Era in Thailand : the Indian Subcontinent, Sri Lanka, Myanmar / Virginia Mckeen Di Crocco
Bangkok : The Siam Society, c2004
259p.; ill.; 22cm.
974-272-926-3
$ 35.00

[This book traces the evolution of Buddha Footprints from early origins in India to the creation of a magnificent gold version in honour of Queen Sirikit's Sixth Cycle in

1992. Early footprints were natural impressions in rock. Later the Footprint became an important medium for illustrating Buddhist cosmology. Virginia Di Crocco's deeply researched text explains how the iconography changed with developments in beliefs about the world and with currents in Buddhist devotional practice. The text is supported by over 150 color illustrations of Buddha Footprints in Thailand and adjacent areas. The book is a landmark record of the practice of making Buddha Footprints, as well as a contribution to the religious and artistic history of Southeast Asia.]

[Bridging the Gap is a goldmine of information to assist foreign and Thai businesspeople working together in Thailand. Bridging the gap is divided into four clear sections that provide the foundations for greater cross-cultural understanding :

- The Way we Are : Insight into the cultural make-up of Thai People, from deference to authority to easy-going attitudes and a streak of rebelliousness.
- Spotting the Gap : results of a study into how Thais regard foreigners and how foreigners regard Thais at work.
- At the Workplace : real-life case studies of problems and misunderstanding that commonly arise, and practical advice on ways in which to solve them.
- Out of the Workplace : how to behave and get the most out of occasions such as wedding, funerals, and dining out.]

 $ 25.00

[Islam in China defines the Muslims of China, in particular the Hui [Chinese Muslims] and the Uyghurs. Concepts of nationality [minzu] and umma [Islamic community], and the penetration of Chinese culture or Sinicization, enable the reader to understand the particularities of Islam in China. Mosques, Sufism, feasts, and family shape and Muslim society and its ethos.

After the reforms of Deng Xiaoping, modernization plays an important role, and appears in the daily life of these Muslims through the impressive development of China which also influences indirectly Islam in this part of the world. China's modernization constitutes a model for Southeast Asia and helps the Yunnanese Hui in Thailand and Burma to be proud of their country of origin. One chapter deals with these two countries and explains these unknown Overseas Chinese in particular in Chiang Mai and Mandalay.]

Women's Studies

Overcoming Shadow

S.L. : Women as Peacebuilders' Team, Women's League of Burma (WLB), 2004

73 p.; 21cm.

[This volume contains stories and articles written by women from Burma participating in a project to aid the process of building peace in their home country. The volume is part of the breaking of the culture of silence around sexual abuse and discrimination in different communities in Burma.

This is neither a chronicle of abuse nor of shame but a sign that women from Burma are looking outwards to build a different future, where both men and women will have greater freedom in both their personal and political lives.

These stories and articles are a sign that women have the right to experience a different world and they have a part in making a different possibility for all.]
