Mirroring Power : Ethnogenesis and Integration among the Phunoy of Northern Laos / Vanina Boute (Translated) Alexandra Cealis & Maureen Philips

The Phunoy are a significant Tibeto-Burmese population group from Phongsaly Province in northern Laos that has long been considered acculturated because of its adoption of various features of neighboring Tai societies, particularly Buddhism. This book presents pioneering research based on in-depth ethnographic surveys in Phunoy villages. It reexamines the supposed acculturation of the Phunoy and analyzes the group's own independent identity. The author demonstrates how the Phunoy emerged from groups of war fugitives, who sought new frontiers, and how they constructed a privileged "mirroring" relationship with the various Tai and Lao realms dominating the region. As guardians of the borders and allies of the colonial authorities who administered the province, they progressively formed a territory known as Mueang Phunoy, where they have securely established themselves as indispensable intermediaries between state power and the other mountain ethnic groups. This study reveals long-lasting social, political, and ritual differentiations within Phunoy society. The integration of the Phunoy—and the accompanying disintegration of their village communities—continues within Lao society today, as part of the history of the stabilization of the margins in northern mainland Southeast Asia.

The Vessantara Jataka is the tale of Buddha's last life, before he was reborn as the historical Buddha 2,500 years ago. In this earlier existence as Prince Vessantara he demonstrated evidence of the highest virtue that constitutes an enlightened man: generosity. Vessantara gave away everything dear to him - in the climactic scene of the story, even his wife and children. In North-East Thailand the Vessantara tale is celebrated annually as Bun Phra Wet. Pha Phra Wet - 'Vessantara cloths' - form the visual framework for this festival; they are hand-painted scrolls, which can reach lengths of up to one hundred metres. Devotion presents, for the very first time, a selection of six full-length Vessantara scrolls and explores a contemporary multimedia celebration of an ancient Buddhist text. This book accompanies an exhibition, to be held in the Ethnographic Museum at the University of Zurich (CH), 20.6.2017 to 15.4.2018.

Architecture

Nine in One Landscape / Pichai Jiropas

1. Landscape architecture
2. Landscape architecture – Thailand
$ 60.00 / HB
1340gm.

The initial impetus stemmed from my desire to refurbish the house and garden. Once I got to thinking about the renovation, I began to have the idea that a house can have more than one or two landscape designs; it could have a dozen. So I used this opportunity to create nine different designs as an example for those interested in taking these concepts to apply to their own gardens. In the construction of these works, many different types of materials and equipment were used; in selecting them I prioritised their ease of use and their ability to be recycled into subsequent designs, so that nothing would go to waste. Every single piece of material and every single tree can be reused again and again. Every step of the process was handled with meticulous care. In addition to the beauty of the whole landscape.

This volume presents more than 34 exceptional buildings which display the rigors of steel esthetics and show different ways of dealing with structure elements and materiality. It can be the way of handling the existing construction and technology, the degree of details or the dialogue with its main structure and function which makes the architecture crafted and distinctive. All of these reflect the nationwide expansion of steel usage whose dominance results from the development in infrastructure, transportation system and economy as well as the change in values and lifestyle of Thai people. Through the competence and collaboration of architects, designers, steel manufacturers, contractors and technicians, innovative forms and new dimensions of design and construction have been established in Thailand.

Small Medium Houses 5 is a compilation of 30 of the remarkable recent houses built in one year with numerous approaches that create new and exciting alternatives. Most projects featured in are located in Bangkok Metropolitan where views and land plot are limited. The renovation or expansion house that forms part of a densely packed family is still increasing due to the needs to stay close to parents and the high price of land in the inner city. Staying closer to workplace could reduce traveling hours to work. All factors from land size to owner's dreams and ideas lifestyle create unique houses. Architect's skills and imagination really push up new way of living, atmosphere, health and wellbeing and distinction in one way or another.

$ 20.00 / PB

600gm.

When Yongyudh Ploysongsang left his home in Thailand and arrived in war-torn China at the end of the Second World War, before the resumption of the Chinese Civil War, his prospects looked bleak as did the future of China.

He went from an urban middle-class upbringing to eking out a life as a farmer in rural China. Forced to immigrate to carry on the family lineage, he endured what ended up to be five difficult years in mainland China, which culminated in a harrowing escape from the victorious Communists. After resettling in Thailand, his hard-work and the sacrifices of his family led him to the pinnacle of his career as an academic at an American medical school and later as a prominent physician in his homeland. While this autobiography focuses on the life of one third culture individual, it does so with ample cultural and historical context to keep the interest of a wider audience of readers. The author also discusses his ideas on what contributed to his successes and failures in each of the three countries - three worlds - that he calls home.

The role of the private sector in driving sustainable development is indisputable. Indeed, the impact and influence of the business world is far-reaching, and it is the private sector that stands to lose if it fails to repond to the sustainability challenges facing them and the world at large. Thailand's Sustainable Business Guide looks critically at how Thai businesses of all sizes are taking action: by innovating solutions to complex challenges, by being role models for transformative change, by learning from their experiences, and by assuming a more holistic view of long-term growth. The book offers insights from leading Thai business leader, as well as Thai and international sustainability movement is transforming the very nature of doing business in the country. At the same time, it offers valuable guidance to companies that are starting on this sustainability transition, because ultimately long-lasting impact must be achieved through the combined efforts of all.

My first six months in Thailand was very frustrating. When I dreamed about retiring in Thailand I thought that when I arrived I would get my retirement visa, rent a condo, buy a vehicle, then spend my time exploring my new country, going to the beach, going out for meals and meeting new friends.

Unfortunately reality took over and I spent most of my time dealing with Thai bureaucracy, and trying to sort out the endless problems that arise when moving to a new country. Back in Australia I already had an Australian visa, my own house, my own car, medical insurance, driving license, bank accounts, credit rating, doctor and dentist. Moving to another country I was more or less starting my life over and I needed to establish myself within the Thai system.

Government, banking, medical, everything that was just part of my everyday life back in Australia, I had to re create in Thailand.

Hopefully this book will give you the information you need to avoid most of the problems that I had, and allow you to retire to this wonderful country with confidence and assurance as well as saving you time, money and your sanity.

I wish I had been able to read this book before I left Australia.

Wesley Waterford, self-help author and speaker, escapes New York for Phnom Penh to write his third book. By chance, he discovers the Wesley Waterford book club, befriending Lida, the group's leader, and Mother, expert translator and Khmer Rouge holocaust survivor. Facing questions and uncertainty about his stay in Phnom Penh, Lida encourages Waterford to reconnect with his childhood friend, Rotha, a refugee to California in the eighties. Rotha's return to Waterford's life after twenty-five years, the unpredictable energy of her personality and provocations – and her first trip back to Cambodia since fleeing the revolution – brings the characters together to confront history, secrets and self-doubt.

A tale of friendship and family, love and letting go, In This Invisible is contemporary literary fiction that stares unblinking at Cambodia's past through the lives of four characters colliding in modern day Phnom Penh – a city once abandoned, scenes left simmering in wait of discovery.

Deliciously dark tale about one chef's search for ingredients. Salutory story of greed, infatuation and obsession. Culinary journey through Asia leads to intrigue and corruption. Celebrity chef Corran Brook scours the globe for the world's best recipes and foods, for his ambitious compendium, 'The Story of Food'. But when traveling through Asia and happening upon a rare and extraordinary meal that he cannot decipher, he finds himself neck deep in a mystery of corruption and intrigue. A Dangerous Recipe is a salutory story of greed, infatuation and obsession. But more than a hunt for perfection and the sublime, the book is also an insight into western attitudes to world culture; whether a bug, monument, fossil or dish, there's a compulsive need to control, curate and make it one's own.
