The Legend of CEIBS : China's World Class Business School / Yueqing Li
Singapore: Cengage Learning Asia, 2010
322p.
ISBN 13: 9789814296250 (HB)
$ 29.95

The year 2009 marks the 15th anniversary of the China Europe International Business School (CEIBS). Since its founding in 1994 as a China-Europe joint venture in business education, CEIBS has achieved spectacular success. According to the 2009 Global Business School Rankings released by the Financial Times, CEIBS's MBA program ranked No.8, the top performer in Asia for six years; its EDP ranking broke into the top 20; and its EMBA, which has been among the world's top 50 for eight years, came in at No.26. CEIBS owes its current success to a small group of people who gave it their all. The founders, both Chinese and expatriate, devoted themselves to showing the way in a country bereft of business knowledge and often unfamiliar with even the concept of management. They endured years of losses and the threat of closure, but the strength of their dynamism, convictions, and passion finally succeeded in awakening a dormant market and unleashing an exciting future. CEIBS's remarkable achievement is also an extraordinary case study in itself. Its commercial- style governance, business model, strategic positioning, choice and maintenance of target markets, and experience-driven marketing, as well as its continual stream of new course offerings while maintaining rigorous quality and corporate identity standards, are worthy of mention in the same breath as any company success story.

China's Specialized Markets / Lu Li-Jun, Wang Zu-qiang
Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010
350p. ; 185mm x 235mm
ISBN 13: 9789814272759 (HB)
$ 150.00

As induced institutional innovation with Chinese characteristics, specialized markets provide a shared and low-cost transaction platform for rural as well as small- and medium-sized enterprises. China's Specialized Markets is the first comprehensive discussion on the titular subject. The authors use economies of scale, division of labor, specialization economies, and new historical institutional analysis (HIA) to examine the factors driving the rise of specialized markets in different areas of China and to reveal the internal mechanism behind the expansion and evolution of these markets. By using theories of transaction cost, public choice, and so on, they also explore the internal governance and operational mechanism of specialized markets as well as their interactions with industrial clusters and local governments.

Development of China in the Modern World System / Lu De-ming
Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010
262p.
ISBN 13: 9789814272766 (HB)
$ 150.00

China's rapid economic development has been realized through its interactive endeavors with many other countries. The China miracle is therefore not an isolated event limited to one country and should not be examined and measured with a single theory such as conventional growth economics, development economics, or institutional economics. Development of China in Modern World System explores the driving forces of the China miracle from the perspective of international development. It discusses how China managed, over the past 30 years, to grasp the opportunities for development through opening itself up and seeking cooperation and competition with other countries in terms of foreign trade, capital, human capital, technology import, and management system. It also looks at the various issues confronted by China in its long-term development.

Economic Growth and Structural Evolution / Liu Xiahui, Zhang Ping & Zhang Xiaojing
Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010
369p.
ISBN 13: 9789814272728 (HB)
$ 150.00

In Economic Growth and Structural Evolution, the authors propose that China's reform strategy is to promote capital accumulation through a gradual adjustment of its relative price system, enabling the industrial capital to obtain higher profits and thus unleashing the great potential of economic growth. Moreover, the Chinese government prioritizes the growth of different industries at different times through measures such as the dual-track price system leading to the rise of township and village enterprises and the opening up of eastern coastal areas resulting in rapid urbanization and the boom of the real estate industry. This growth pattern has effectively mobilized China's huge labor resources and given full play to its comparative advantages. However, the pattern is not sustainable as government intervention and distorted factor prices have caused growth imbalance. Sustainable growth can only be achieved when the Chinese government shifts its focus from GDP growth to welfare improvement.

Economic Reform & Institutional Innovation / Yang Yao
Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010
315p.
ISBN-13: 9789814272711 (HB)
$ 150.00

In Economic Reform and Institutional Innovation, the author identifies three building blocks that have contributed to China's success: decentralization, an encompassing state, and volitional pragmatism. Decentralization provides dynamism to institutional innovation. An encompassing state ensures the survival and legalization of viable institutional innovations amidst the competition among different political groups. Volitional pragmatism enables the political entrepreneurs to hold a realistic attitude toward institutions while keeping an open mind to all future possibilities. The interplay between these three factors has shaped China's reform trajectory. Along the path though, there have been constant interactions between local experiments and the central government's ideological adjustments. This has created many mid-way institutions that do not fit into any existing institutional framework. However, it is the accumulation of these mid-way institutions that has stimulated China's transition from a planned to a market economy.

Incentives and Governance: China's Local Governments / Li-An Zhou
Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010
318p.
ISBN-13: 9789814272742
$ 150.00

China's economic miracle has seriously challenged conventional wisdom that highlights the critical role of property rights protection, an independent legal system, and a democratic system of checks and balances in sustaining long term growth. By international standards, China ranks low in terms of all these institutional fundamentals.

Further, the sustainability of China's rapid economic growth has been threatened by a host of accompanying problems and challenges such as environmental pollution, alarming income inequality, regional disparity, under-funded social security, and bureaucratic corruption. Incentives and Governance: China's Local Governments aims to unravel the institutional arrangements behind China's rapid, sustained economic growth and to examine the downsides of these arrangements. To this end, the author constructs a unified conceptual framework focusing on the incentives of local officials and government governance.

The Micro-Foundation of China's Market Economy / Xiao-Xuan Liu

Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010

356p.

ISBN-13: 9789814272773

$ 150.00

The enterprise revolution is probably the most noteworthy chapter in China's thirty years of economic reform and opening up. In The Micro-foundation of China's Market Economy, the author traces the interaction and evolution of state owned, privately-run, joint-stock, and foreign-invested enterprises against the backdrop of reform and opening up. The author also examines the changing external environment in which these four types of enterprises grew and explores the necessity and dynamics of institutional innovation. The book focuses on the macro framework and the major events; equal importance is placed on empirical description and theoretical interpretation.

Toward An Innovative Nation / Zang-Lai Kou

Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010

262p.

ISBN-13: 9789814272780 (HB)

$ 150.00

Prior to the 1980s, China had a highly concentrated, inefficient science and technology management system which deprived the fundamental agents of decision-making autonomy, impeded entrepreneurship, and separated technological innovation from industrial application. The "Decision on the Reform of the Science and Technology Management System" adopted by the central government in 1985 ushered in a new era, laying the foundation for all the subsequent reform policies. Toward an Innovative Nation documents the major reform initiatives since then, attempts to provide an economic interpretation of their evolutions, and argues that "China's miracle" is propped up by a solid innovation system. It also discusses the challenges facing China on its way toward an innovative nation in areas such as the role of governments at different levels in allocating R&D resources, the IPR policies, and labor market control.

Transformation of the Chinese Enterprises / Jun Zhang

Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010

324p.

ISBN-13: 9789814272735 (HB)

$ 150.00

Today, China has a variety of enterprises. About 150 large enterprises are still owned by the governments, but they are run as modern corporations. Millions of small enterprises are privately owned and are competitive and dynamic, providing 80 percent of China's exports to the outside world. Many of them evolved out of township and village enterprises. Some are hi-tech companies founded and managed by Chinese scholars educated overseas, but most have been established by local Chinese entrepreneurs. In addition, China is home to over 500,000 foreign invested companies. Based on detailed documents, Transformation of the Chinese Enterprises vividly portrays the transformation and evolution of China's state-owned and non-state enterprises. It particularly highlights the entrepreneurial spirit of the Chinese populace in the face of the drastic changes that have occurred in China's economic system since the outset of economic reforms in the late 1970s.

IT Audit in China / Ruzhou Liu
Singapore: Cengage Learning Asia, 2010
250p. ; 152 x 229 mm
ISBN-13: 9789814281454 (HB)
$29.95

This book summarizes the theoretical findings and practical experience of China's IT audit, as well as the background of the IT audit development in China. It consists of three parts. Part I gives a brief introduction to government audit in China, especially the special characteristics of China's government audit, and then introduces the current status and characteristics of China's IT audit. Part II discusses in detail the standardized practice operation of IT audit in China, such as the seven-step procedure of IT audit, the concept, target, and steps of information systems audit, and the three operation modes of IT audit. This part also introduces some IT audit technologies and methods, e.g., construction of preliminary database tables (PDTs). Part III describes the support systems of IT Audit in China, including the Quality Control Model of IT Audit; the reform of IT audit project organization and management models designed to guarantee the quality and effective implementation of IT audit projects.

Globalization and the Rural-Urban Divide / Munisamy Gopinath & Hanho Kim (Edited)
Seoul: Seoul National University Press, 2009
x. ; 387p. ; 23cm.
ISBN-13: 9788952110718 (HB)
$ 83.50

This volume does an absolutely sterling job of illustrating the importance of conducting rigorous analysis of why economic activity can become concentrated in a few regions, while leaving other regions relatively under-developed. Its greatest strength, and why it will be of such great use to other researchers interested in the impact of globalization on the rural-urban divide, lies in its comprehensive global coverage, with chapters focusing on countries from every continent on the globe.

Econometrics in the Information Age: Theory and Practice of Measurement – Vol. 4

<http://www.marymartin.com/web?pid=123922>

This book offers the representative macroeconometric models and their applications for the Japanese economy in different development stages throughout the postwar years up to the present. It presents a summary of three types of macroeconometric models and analyses:

- Social accounting analyses of national income and related indices — following the tradition of C Clark, S Kuznets, R Stone and World Bank Development Reports;
 - Inter-industrial and inter-regional analyses of the Japanese economy a la W Leontief and the CGE (computable general equilibrium) type of applications to Comprehensive Development Plans;
 - Macroeconometric model building for the Japanese economy and its applications with a survey of various models in Japan, including the historic Osaka University ISER (Institute of Social and Economic Research) model and present day Government models.
- As many Asian economies are going through the stages of development that Japan has experienced over the past few decades, this book will be extremely relevant to them and other developing countries as a reference for years to come.

How Asia Can Share the World: From the Era of Plenty to the Era of Scarcities / Jorgen Orstrom Moller

Singapore: ISEAS Publishing, 2011

ix. 540p. ; 23cm.

ISBN-13: 9789814311335

$ 49.90

Asia will redraw the map of economic progress over the next twenty-five years. Growth is necessary to solve economic and social problems, but harder to achieve as the age of plenty gives way to the age of scarcities. The challenge opens the doors for an Asian economic model based on shifting of productivity for the individual to groups, ecological productivity instead of economic productivity, and a reversal to traditional Asian values - less materialistic than Western values. A new paradigm for economic thinking emerges to replace the one launched in the West 200 years ago.

Pursuing Green Growth in Asia and the Pacific / Rae Kwon Chung
Singapore: Cengage Learning Asia, 2010
340p.
ISBN-13: 9789814253925 (HB)
$ 59.90

The Asia-Pacific region is experiencing the fastest economic growth among the regions of the world. Yet, economic growth in its current form is placing enormous pressure on the environmental carrying capacity of the region. Unless this is properly checked, the environmental carrying capacity for future generations will be seriously compromised. Despite the increasing environmental pressure arising from economic growth, it is only through economic growth that the nations of the region can reduce poverty and improve environmental management. Therefore, the challenge is not to limit economic growth but to convert it into an environmentally sustainable form. In other words, the region has to turn away from the conventional 'Grow First, Clean Up Later' paradigm and move towards the 'green growth' paradigm which harmonises economic growth with environmental sustainability.

Money, Islamic Banks and Real Economy / Abdul Ghafar Ismail
Singapore: Cengage Learning Asia, 2009
552p.
ISBN-13: 9789814253994
$ 69.95

This book is intended to develop some important discourses on three important subjects, that is, money, Islamic banks and the real economy. The discussion on money will highlight the role of money as capital. It starts with an understanding of why money is so important to the smooth functioning of the economy and how it improves human well-being, we need to understand exactly what money is. To quantify the impact of money on the economy, we need to be able to measure it. The goal of these discussions is to understand what the concept of money is, how we use it, how we measure it and how we channel it to Islamic banking.
