The increasing importance of technology in the practice and content of law can hardly be overstated. The practice of law is now fused with technology; law firms are digitising at a rate that can only increase. At the same time, the content of law is having to adapt: courts are being asked whether an app can provide "legal advice", whether intangibles like cryptocurrencies are property, and whether a transaction wholly concluded by algorithms can be avoided on the basis of mistake. How do you stay relevant if you haven't kept abreast of issues emerging now and in the near future? This primer by experts in their respective fields offers students and practitioners an overview of the relevant technologies, a survey of their impact on the content of law today, and a window into future issues that may arise – as well as some of the potential solutions.

Criminal Law in Singapore / Chan Wing Cheong, Neil Morgan , Stanley Yeo

LexisNexis, Singapore 2022

1v.

9789815019094

$ 250.00 / HB

This book describes and evaluates the general principles of criminal responsibility and the major offences against the person and property contained in the Singapore Penal Code. Leading cases from Singapore and the other Indian Penal Code jurisdictions of India, Malaysia, Myanmar and Sri Lanka are considered, along with relevant cases from major common law jurisdictions.

This work builds on Criminal Law in Malaysia and Singapore (LexisNexis, 3rd Ed, 2018) by the same authors. However, the reforms brought about by the Criminal Law Reform Act 2019 made it necessary to devote this book to the law of Singapore. It compares the law before and after the amendments in order to understand the reasons for the changes, and to aid the interpretation and application of the law in practice.

- Comprehensive analysis of the general principles of criminal responsibility in Singapore
- Analysis of the major offences against the person and property in light of the general principles of criminal responsibility
- Evaluation of the amendments to the Singapore Penal Code made by the Criminal Law (Reform) Act 2019
- Review of all major relevant cases from Singapore, India, Malaysia, Myanmar and Sri Lanka
- Places the law in a historical and theoretical context pointing to its strengths and weaknesses, and suggests further improvements to the law

$ 950.00 / HB

Singapore Civil Practice is a subsequent to the publication 'Singapore Court Practice', which was relied on by the Courts as persuasive authority in over 500 judgments. It covers all amendments to rules of court as well as case law developments, practice directions, other legal sources, and practice information in a new format. It is more than a comprehensive work on Civil Practice, it also explains the difficult areas of the law and provides the civil litigator with all the necessary arguments for his case. This book is organised in 12 parts containing almost 50 topic-based chapters (in contrast to traditional commentaries on Orders). The topic-based approach of this book will be particularly helpful in understanding the new Rules of Court 2021. Cross-references to Forms are also conveniently included in an appendix at the end of each Part. Singapore Civil Practice provides • Detailed commentary on the new Rules of Court 2021 and Practice Directions 2021. • Comparison of Rules of Court 2021 with previous Rules of Court 2014 to explain the changes in civil practice and new developments. • Analysis of all case law developments including particular emphasis on vital rulings of the Supreme Court and important decisions from other jurisdictions • Analysis of revised legislation affecting various areas of civil practice. • Practice-oriented approach showing how the Rules of Court 2021 operate in different spheres of court procedure.

$ 400.00 / HB

This work was first published in 2005 when the Building and Construction Industry Security of Payments Act 2004 first came into force. It was described by Justice Robert McDougall of the New South Wales Supreme Court as both an "academic treatise" of "tremendous value and utility". The Second Edition was described by Chief Justice Chan Sek Keong of Singapore as a "highly accessible guide to the subject". The Third Edition establishes this book as the leading text on the subject in Singapore. It addresses all the wealth of case law up to March 2022, including Grouteam Pte Ltd v UES Holdings Pte Ltd (2016); Comfort Management Pte Ltd v OGSP Engineering Pte Ltd (2018) and Shimizu Corp v Stargood Construction Pte Ltd (2020). It also examines new jurisprudential materials emanating from the United Kingdom, the eight Australian states (including New South Wales), Ireland, Malaysia and New Zealand. The new edition also considers the impact of the Building and Construction Industry Security of Payment (Amendment) Act in 2018 which alters significantly the ambit of the statutory regime. About 800 cases are cited in this edition, which has expanded compared to the Second Edition. "Chow Kok Fong is considered the leading expert on Singapore's Building and Construction Industry Security of Payment Act...[He] s to be commended for diligently tracking, compiling and producing an easy-to-read and comprehensive new edition." Justice Belinda Ang, President of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Singapore, from the Foreword to the 3rd Edition.

Sweet & Maxwell, Malaysia 2022

1v DUO (Paperback + Proview Ebook)

9789672723547

$ 75.00 / null

Written by an experienced tax lawyer and a former Assistant Director of Inland Revenue, this book provides a clear and instructive guide on conducting income tax and customs appeals for new tax lawyers, accountants, inland revenue officers and tax agents. The book has been prepared specially in answer to the change in the procedure of tax appeal under the Income Tax (Amendment) Act 2019 effective January 2020.

This book deals with the procedure for appeals before the Special Commissioners of Income Tax, the Customs Appeal Tribunal and appeals at the appellate courts (High Court and Court of Appeal). It also discusses the tax returns by individuals and companies and assessments thereof, review of and appeal against decisions by the Director General of Customs and issues surrounding judicial review in revenue cases. Readers will be introduced to and provided valuable guidance on the process to prepare and conduct an income tax appeal and an appeal before the Customs Appeal Tribunal. Further, the points to specifically look at in conducting appeals at the appellate courts will be highlighted

FUNDAMENTALS OF RUNNING DOWN AND PERSONAL INJURY LITIGATION:
Malaysian Litigation Series / Jeyaseelen Anthony

Sweet & Maxwell, Malaysia 2022

374p.

DUO (Hardback + ProView eBook)

97896727233462

$ 125.00 / HB

A new addition to the Malaysian Litigation Series, Fundamentals of Running Down and Personal Injury Litigation is an instructive and practical book on the law relating to personal injury and fatal accident claims in Malaysia. It contains content on the evidential aspects of running down cases pursuant to the Evidence Act 1950 and more importantly the advocacy and litigation aspects of these types of claims including the pre-trial and trial stages of the cases.

The pre-trial aspects cover useful tips on preparing pleadings and bundles of documents while the part on trial considers the litigation and advocacy aspects of personal injury practice. Very practical in nature, this publication covers topics like litigating a running down case in court, the do's and don'ts when presenting a case as well as the leading of evidence and the cross-examination of witnesses to prove one's case to the satisfaction of the trial court. In short, readers are given useful guidance on how to build a strong foundation for their client's case in terms of strengthening the trial strategy both pre-trial and during trial.

The assessment of quantum of damages for injuries/losses sustained which form a major part of personal injury practice is adequately covered in this book. Commentaries on past case law and the latest development of the law are included as well as updates in relation to the latest amendments to the Civil Law Act 1956. The growing interest in issues surrounding settlements out of court is pertinently addressed to make this a very comprehensive title.

LEGAL ASPECTS OF FIDUCIARY DUTIES IN MALAYSIA / Wan Azlan Ahmad,
Mohsin Hingun

Sweet & Maxwell, Malaysia 2022

362p.

DUO (Hardback + ProView eBook)

9789672723509

$ 125.00 / HB

This work seeks to examine the principles of law in relation to the legal duties of fiduciaries. These duties are not only those that originate from the equitable jurisdiction of the court, but also involve some other duties imposed under written law as well as those developed at common law. The scope of fiduciary duties in private law is extensive – regulating the conduct of professions such as trustees, lawyers, company directors, company promoters, partners, and agents; and in some other relationships, the facts of the case may be such as justify the imposition of fiduciary duties on employees, financial advisors, bankers, and parties to joint venture, to quote a few examples. In instances not covered by precedent, fiduciary duties may be imposed where the hallmarks of trust and confidence are found.

The creation of the office of trustees under the companies as well as the capital markets and services statutes indicates the importance of the office of trustees, and the attendant fiduciary duties attached to trustees, in the corporate and financial sectors; and this is in addition to the existing principles of law, including those developed by equity, governing the exercise of directorial powers by company directors.

This publication should be welcomed not only by those who are involved in the teaching, practice and enforcing of the law but also by those to whom fiduciary obligations may apply, that is, everyone who may be bound by an obligation of loyalty to another party or parties in a given relationship, and their advisors.

ELECTRONIC EVIDENCE IN MALAYSIA: ADMISSIBILITY AND DISCOVERY / Gita Radhakrishna

Sweet & Maxwell, Malaysia 2022

426p.

DUO (Hardback + ProView eBook)

9789672723370

$ 110.00 / HB

Set against the backdrop of a fictional murder, this book presents the law and procedure on electronic evidence and E-Discovery in a uniquely refreshing style. Each chapter takes up a thread from the story, as it delves into the study of the authenticity and discovery of potential digital evidence captured from various electronic sources.

The first part of the book deals exhaustively with how to authenticate evidence obtained from diverse electronic sources to be presented as evidence at trial. The second part discusses the right to obtain discovery of such evidence in its electronic format and the attendant issues and challenges in the process.

The current Malaysian statutory provisions and a wealth of case law from Malaysia, Singapore, England and the USA are analysed to give the reader a better perspective and understanding of this fast-growing and complex area of the law of evidence. The book concludes with a peek into the future and the new lawyering skills that it entails. It is a must-have companion for judges, judicial officers and litigators.

This updated edition of Law for Business delivers some of the more important principles, cases and legislative provisions in business law in a clear and succinct manner. The text and materials are presented in a clear structure for those with and without legal background to easily grasp the complex legal principles in business law.

This edition retains 24 chapters broadly covering the following areas of law: contract law, torts, employment law, the law dealing with business organisations, i.e. sole proprietorships, partnerships and companies, sale of goods and consumer protection, banking, insurance and takaful law.

Recent developments in judicial pronouncements and legislation that impinge upon trade, business and employees have also been included. The COVID-19 pandemic caused massive global economic and social disruption and brought into sharp focus the need for quick legislative and policy responses to the challenges of operating a business. Accordingly, latest amendments to key legislation, new sets of regulations as well as landmark cases have been incorporated.

CONSTRUCTION ADJUDICATION IN MALAYSIA 3rd Ed. / Lam Wai Loon

Sweet & Maxwell, Malaysia 2022

706p.

DUO (Hardback + ProView eBook)

9789672723264

$ 210.00 / HB

Construction Adjudication in Malaysia examines legal principles which govern the application of the CIPA Act 2012. It examines and analyses most of the important judicial decisions on construction adjudication made by the courts in Malaysia, the United Kingdom, New Zealand, Australia and Singapore. Since the publication of the second edition, there have been more than 200 reported judicial decisions from the courts in Malaysia, including the Federal Court decisions in Jack-In-Pile (M) Sdn Bhd v Bauer (M) Sdn Bhd and Ireka Engineering & Construction Sdn Bhd v PWC Corp Sdn Bhd.

Organised in 22 systematically-structured chapters, the book provides in-depth and practical guidance on all stages of the adjudication process, from the filing of a payment claim, to the commencement of adjudication proceedings, the management of the adjudication proceedings up to the delivery of the adjudication decision, as well as enforcement, stay and challenge of adjudication decisions. This is topped off with an easy-to-understand and comprehensive Practice Guide which provides a step-by-step framework to successfully navigate the entire adjudication process.

The present work is a new and revamped edition of the highly regarded first and second editions, which have been described as a 'seminal' book on adjudication in Malaysia, and often referred to in Malaysian court judgments. This edition will continue to serve as a useful reference for judges, legal practitioners, adjudicators and students, as well as other stakeholders in the construction industry including employers, contractors, subcontractors, suppliers and consultants.

The rules embodied in the law of contempt are intended to uphold and ensure the effective administration of justice. They serve to protect the integrity of the administration of justice, making sure that persons who seek justice and persons who participate in the administration of justice are adequately safeguarded.

There being no specific legislation enacted to date on contempt of court in Malaysia, the law governing this subject is primarily common law. This book serves as an important and upto-date source of reference on committal proceedings for practitioners, academics and judicial officers alike. Covering both civil and criminal contempt, it contains the fruit of extensive research into local and UK case law as well as decisions from other Commonwealth jurisdictions like Singapore and Hong Kong. A useful discussion of the freedom of expression and its impact on contempt of court is included, as is a survey of the reform and development of the law of contempt in several Commonwealth countries.

Committal proceedings being very procedural in nature, an extensive chapter provides detailed discussion of the law, procedure and relevant considerations in committals. Sentencing principles, mitigation and the types of sentences which may be imposed for contempt are given due analysis, while appeals against the decisions of the courts are also discussed. A helpful collection of forms and precedents applicable to the conduct of committal proceedings complements the valuable legal analysis contained in this book.

The United Nations Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards ("the New York Convention"), signed on 10 June 1958, has provided a unique legal framework for the recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards and arbitration agreements. Having been adopted by 166 States at the time of this book, the NYC represents the most significant convention in the field. Being widely adopted around the world more than any other international documents, it is time to assess its meaning for international arbitration. The NYC has played miscellaneous roles since its birth, and this book aims to address such an assessment within the context of its harmonising role. It provides a specific lens to offer a clear and comprehensive picture of harmonising role of the New York Convention and where future research should focus. Having celebrated its 60th anniversary in 2018, this book, putting the role and significance of the NYC in the right context, would serve to pay tribute to the creators of the NYC on the one hand, and on the other hand would gain more attention than ever to direct effort to the right sources for further development in the field.

Transfer of Risk in International Sales Contracts Under the CISG (United Nations Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods), INCOTERMS® (International Commercial Terms) and English Law / Hamit Melen

In the international sale of goods risk is an important concept that should not be underestimated. This is because the transfer of the sold goods from the buyer to the seller does not involve a short and easy process. During this process, the goods could be damaged or lost. Despite the contract of sale, the parties may disagree who will bear the risk when the goods are lost or damaged. Moreover, in the international sale of goods the transition of risk differs in different legal systems. It is therefore important to first understand what the risk is and then determine how and when it passes to the buyer in the legal systems involved. Besides, there is benefit in examining whether the obligations of the parties arising from the sales contract affect the transfer of risk. Knowing how risk is passed can prevent disputes in international sales law. This paper will examine in detail the passage of risk in international goods sales under CISG, Incoterms® and English law. First, a general definition of the risk will be offered, and general information will be given about how it transfers to the buyer. Then the concept of risk will be examined, first under CISG and then under the international commercial terms issued by the ICC, and how it is incorporated in international sales contracts will be discussed. Since English law applies SGA 1979 to international sales, how risk passes will also be examined

In recent years there has been a focus on minority shareholder protection around the world. Turkey, accordingly, adopted new legislation in 2012, namely Turkish Commercial Code No. 6102. This book will reveal the situation regarding the protection of minority shareholders in Turkish company law by presenting recommendations on how to improve minority shareholder protection in Turkey based on the UK's experience. Legal protection of minority shareholders has gone through several reforms and improvements under common law until UK Companies Act 2006. Many issues have been considered in the case law and then the remedies and rights of minority shareholders have been codified. The research will focus on selected cases and examine the legislation in relation to remedies of minority shareholders in the UK and Turkey.

Whether Turkey should be deemed as a "safe third country" for asylum seekers in Europe is a legal conundrum that deserves heightened attention with the adoption of the EU-Turkey Statement of March 2016 and EU-Turkey Readmission Agreement. This book aspires to contribute to this discussion through an analysis of Turkish judicial practices on international protection, removal and administrative detention procedures, including their interaction with international and European framework and jurisprudence. One purpose of the book is to display the protection challenges that the safe third country concept creates through the example of Turkey. The position defended is that Turkish judicial practices or any other component of safe third country assessment such as administrative practices or normative framework should be evaluated from this perspective, by keeping in mind the inherent problems of the safe third country concept. In the assessment of Turkey's position as a safe third country for EU states, state of judiciary is a crucial factor. Judiciary acts as the ultimate safeguard for protection of rights and guiding administrative practices through interpretation of normative framework. Thus the second aim of this book is to analyze the problematic legal issues in Turkish judicial practices relevant to international protection, removal and administrative detention, based on an empirical study of decisions of Turkish courts. The empirical method in the qualitative analysis of Turkish jurisprudence is supported with a comparative analysis of the case law of the European Court of Human Rights, Court of Justice of the EU as well as the domestic jurisprudence of EU states.

Book on Constitutional Reform containing the perspectives of eminent contributors recognized for their expertise on the subject at a time when there is an ongoing process set up to develop a new Constitution in Sri Lanka is a valuable and necessary contribution to the Constitution making process. It starts with a personal background of the first Executive President of Sri Lanka, J.R. Jayewardene, as being a lawyer with a legacy of five generations of lawyers and proceeds to incorporate his "THOUGHTS ON CONSTITUTIONALISM". This section covers the evolution of Constitutional Reform in Sri Lanka starting with the Donoughmore and Soulbury Constitutions, and explains the influences that made him an advocate of the presidential form of government in preference to the parliamentary system.

In Crime and Punishment in Islamic Law: A Fresh Interpretation, Mohammad Kamali considers problems associated with and proposals for reform of the hudud punishments prescribed by Islamic criminal law, and other topics related to crime and punishment in Shariah. He examines what the Qur'an and hadith say about hudud punishments, as well as just retaliation (qisas), and discretionary punishments (ta'zir), and looks at modern-day applications of Islamic criminal law in 15 Muslim countries. Particular attention is given to developments in Malaysia, a multi-religious society, federal state, and self-described democracy, where a lively debate about hudud has been on-going for the last three decades. Malaysia presents a particularly interesting case study of how a reasonably successful country with a market economy, high levels of exposure to the outside world, and a credible claim to inclusivity, deals with Islamic and Shariah-related issues. Kamali concludes that there is a significant gap between the theory and practice of hudud in the scriptural sources of Shariah and the scholastic articulations of jurisprudence of the various schools of Islamic law, arguing that literalism has led to such rigidity as to make Islamic criminal law effectively a dead letter. His goal is to provide a fresh reading of the sources of Shariah and demonstrate how the Qur'an and Sunnah can show the way forward to needed reforms of Islamic criminal law.

Company Law and Practice in Nigeria is a worthy roadmap in navigating the entire gamut of Nigerian Corporate law. It begins with a concise history of company law in Nigeria, examines the creation of companies, founding documents and contracts, corporate finance, officers, principles, corporate governance, filings, restructuring and taxation. It also captures and feeds readers on provisions of recent corporate legislations in Nigeria, namely the Companies and Allied Matters Act 2020.

Unlike its contemporaries, Company Law and Practice in Nigeria extensively expatiates on the application of Company Law in practice, through a repository of recent judicial decisions. In addition, Business Names and Incorporated Trustees are not left out, as the book conveys statutory stipulations and regulatory prescriptions concerning their creation and operation in Nigeria.

The authors who are knowledgeable in the sphere of corporate law and practice have presented a topical book and it is highly recommended for companies, corporate lawyers, in-house counsel, attorneys, corporate academics, law students and persons seeking clarification on any aspects of Nigerian Corporate Law and Practice.

This remarkable book contains over 60 speeches, seven judicial opinions, and three academic articles of Chief Justice Willy Mutunga written during his tenure as Chief Justice and President of the Supreme Court of Kenya from 2011 to 2016. Edited by Prof. Sylvia Kangara, Duncan Okello and Kwamchetsi Makokha, the book is a tour de force of Chief Justice Willy Mutunga's remarkable career as the first Chief Justice under the 2010 Constitution and his efforts to transform the Judiciary, but also his role as an unrivalled leader of civil society movements in Kenya, thinker, academic, reformist and much more.

The speeches, judicial opinions and academic articles are divided along the themes that resonate across Chief Justice Mutunga's career: People, Participation and the Law; Gender Justice; the Legal Profession; Dialogue with Judges, Magistrates, Kadhis and Staff; Judicial Accountability; Jurisprudence; Elections; Expanding the Footprint of Justice; Inter-Governmental Relations; the Elite and the Academy; Nationhood; Youth Culture and the Arts; International Judicial Diplomacy; and of course Beacons for the Future. It is those Beacons for the future from which the title of this book is derived.

This book therefore reflects Chief Justice Willy Mutunga's commitment to what he calls the beacons of the 2010 Constitution. His own tenure as Chief Justice exemplified those beacons of alternative political leadership including incorruptibility, integrity, equitable distribution of resources among all people in the county, particularly minorities, and promotion of the sovereignty of the people through deep and committed public participation.

Anyone who wants to understand why Kenya's 2010 Constitution was so overwhelmingly ratified by the people of Kenya, how to interpret and understand it as well as what it means across a whole range.

Human rights in the Ottoman reform: foundations, motivations and formations / Şentürk, Recep

İbn Haldun University 2020

366 p

$ 75.00 / null

This book argues that the late Ottoman constitutional reforms (i) were carried out as a consequence of the metamorphosis of the Empire into a modern state, (ii) were considerably in favour of the bureaucratic class, (iii) were paying regard to the expectations of the Ottoman and the Western public, and most importantly (iv) had been in conformity with Islamic jurisprudence. The constitutional reforms in the late Ottoman Empire on fundamental rights and freedoms were an idiosyncratic reflection of a trans-regional political paradigm shift. Most of the reforms were carried out in conformity with Islamic jurisprudence that had been continuously implemented in the Ottoman judicial system for centuries. The majority of the legislation was nothing but a codification of Islamic principles of jurisprudence. Yet some of them were quite new to the system, such as legislation on imprisonment and custody. Nevertheless, these new systems were adapted to Islamic jurisprudence. Moreover, the new regime of the protection of human rights brought an innovation to the judicial system concerning bureaucrats' fundamental rights. These reforms reflected a significant effort for the adjustment of the new Ottoman administrative practices to the principles of Islamic jurisprudence.

The Author of this book Advocate Laxmi Prasad Kharel is a prolific writer and an emerging scholar of Law Academics of Nepal. Advocate Kharel has already authored more than thirty books in the area of Law, History and Constitution. He is equally interested on Legal history. The author has written this book being deeply engrossed with the available literatures on Property law and making scrutinized analysis for the completion of it. The author who works as a law lecturer in Kathmandu, is a voracious reader, has written numerous articles in the journals and newspapers. As a man of letters and humble seeker of knowledge, he has obtained MA(History), MA(Archaeology and Culture), MED(English-Socio-Psycho Linguistics), MA (English) and LLM(Constitutional Law) from TU, Nepal. Author Kharel was born on January 15, 1973 at Baradashi R.M.C. Ward No. 5, Jhapa, Nepal. He was the topper of LLM in Constitutional Law in the exam held by TU in 2008-2009. This book has provided upto-date information about Property law of Nepal and other Acts and Laws which govern the Property Law of Nepal. The book flawlessly explains the right of Property as a fundamental right in Nepal and its sanctity safeguarded by the Indian Constitution, US Constitution and other Declarations, ie, Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 1948 and French Declaration of Rights of Man and Citizen, 1789. It is expected that this book will serve an inquisitorial purpose for the students of law, researchers of law and staffs of judiciary. This book has incorporated new legal provisions dealing with the property law. It has been undated as per the newly enacted National Civil Code, 2074.

This book captures the Indian state's difficult dialogue with divorce, mediated largely through religion. By mapping the trajectories of marriage and divorce laws of Hindu, Muslim, and Christian communities in post-colonial India, it explores the dynamic interplay between law, religion, family, minority rights and gender in Indian politics. It demonstrates that the binary frameworks of the private-public divide, individuals versus group rights, and universal rights versus legal pluralism collapse before the peculiarities of religious personal law. Historicizing the legislative and judicial response to decades of public debates and activism on the question of personal law, it suggests that the sustained negotiations over family life within and across the legal landscape provoked a unique and deeply contextual evolution of both, secularism and religion in India's constitutional order. Personal law, therefore, played a key role in defining the place of religion and determining the content of secularism in India's democracy.

Written from the perspective of critical theory, ASEAN as an International Organization: International Law and Region-Building in Southeast Asia analyzes the transformation of ASEAN into an international legal entity. The book presents a critical survey of recent legal scholarship and calls for an interdisciplinary study of ASEAN. It explores the concept of "people" and provides a people's reading of the ASEAN Charter. It describes ASEAN as a wayang kulit of Member States and critiques the constitutional, extra-constitutional, and practical fetters of the international organization. Finally, it demystifies the fictions of community in ASEAN discourses and interrogates ASEAN's project of subject-formation. The book cuts across the boundaries of international law, politics, and culture. Written in lucid prose, it will be an invigorating reading for lawyers, academics, and students of law and ASEAN.

"This book should find its place in every person's library...[it is] a resource for engagement and vital critical discourse." Philip T. N. Koh, Star2 This is a much-welcome new edition of the seminal introduction to Malaysia's constitution by the leading expert in the field. Retaining its comprehensive approach, it examines constitutional governance in light of authoritarianism and continuing inter-communal strife, as well as examining the impact of colonisation on Malaysia's legal public law structure. Updated throughout to include all statutory and case law developments, it also retains its socio-political perspective. A must read for all students and scholars of Malaysian law.
